PREFACE

In the production of this authoritative work, with the valuable assistance of our most progressive citizens, we have endeavored to maintain high standards in every respect and evolve something of real merit and worthy of the commendation of all who are interested in the advancement of Texas.

This volume includes only a portion of the great State of Texas. Our next edition will be devoted to other cities and sections not included herein.

The object of the work is three-fold in its nature: To place before the people of the United States reliable historical, educational, social, biographical, financial, industrial and general information which will exert a powerful influence in behalf of Texas by making known in a most effective way, her many attractive advantages, great undeveloped natural resources, industrial development and opportunities, remarkable financial strength, excellent educational facilities, social refinement and splendid type of citizenship. The resultant effect of this will inevitably be the enrollment, under the banner of the great Lone Star State, of additional desirable citizens, active capital and thriving industries, for the upbuilding of our State and the increasing of prosperity within our borders.

To preserve, in the libraries and homes of Texas, a permanent record of our progress along various lines and a fair representation of the men and women identified with our commercial, professional and social activities at this time. The great historical value of this book to the future generations of Texans is beyond realization at the present time.

To make imperishable the splendid records of our patriotic men and women who thrust aside their own interests and put on the Armor of Service and Sacrifice in the recent great struggle for the liberation of humanity, and also to create a lasting memorial which will perpetuate, in the libraries of the Nation and in the historical organizations, public libraries and homes of Texas, the names of our noble Texas heroes who made the supreme sacrifice of their lives that we may have freedom

The credit for the existence of this book and all the good it will accomplish in various ways, at home and abroad, is due to those loyal, public-spirited, patriotic Texans shown herein as the creators of it. Much praise is due those who by their patronage made possible the production of this splendid edition.

In justice to those having personal representation herein, we wish to state that no one was included in this work biographically or pictorially at his or her own request, but only because of having been favorably passed upon, as to eligibility, by a local Selective Advisory Committee.

THE BIOGRAPHICAL SECTION gives concise, conservative data regarding bankers, educators, attorneys, officials, manufacturers, physicians, dentists and other professional and business men and women, constituting a reliable record reflecting credit upon our citizenship.

PHOTO ILLUSTRATIONS of Texans identified with various professional, social, musical, educational, civic and commercial activities are shown to make better known to the citizens of our entire State those entitled to this recognition and also to serve as a most effective and dignified introduction of them to the people of other States. This feature adds a phase of deep human interest not otherwise obtainable.

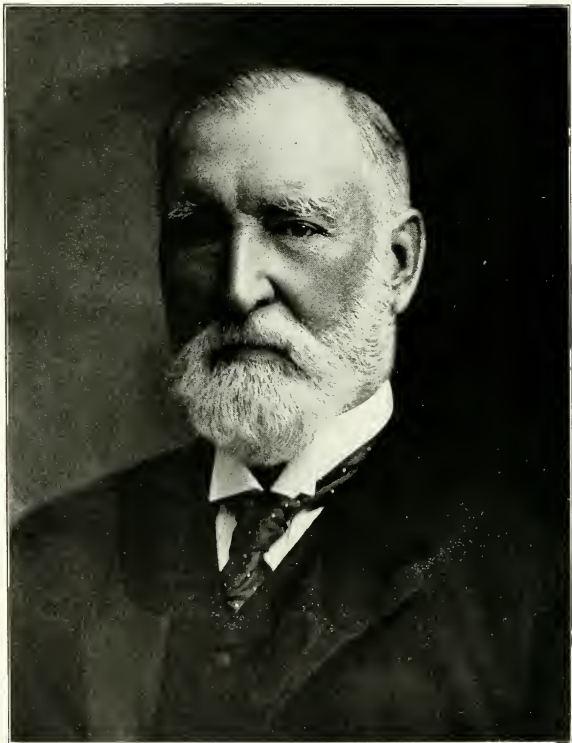

THE SOCIAL REGISTER contains a carefully selected list of names passed upon favorably, as to eligibility, by thoroughly competent local Selective Social Committees. This registration is complimentary and above price.

THE HONOR ROLL of the Military Section perpetuates all the available names of those brave Texans who so heroically fought and made the supreme sacrifice of their lives, in the recent great World War.

In the MILITARY SECTION due recognition is given for the valor, heroism, sacrifices and effective service rendered by our patriotic men and women.

To our patrons and the many Chambers of Commerce, Merchants' Associations, Banks, Officials and others who by their effective co-operation assisted in the great success of this undertaking, we take this means of expressing our grateful appreciation.

TEXAS AND ITS RESOURCES

Written Especially for the Standard Blue Book

By JAMES Z. GEORGE

Vice President and General Manager Texas Chamber of Commerce, Dallas

THE wealth of Texas consists in a large part in land. The State ranks first in total area and in 1910 fifth in population. At the time the census of 1910 was taken there were 167,937,720 acres of total land area. Of this amount 27,360,666 acres were improved farm lands.

Surface features of the State are: The low coastal plains, the more level rolling timber country, the plateaus and high plains region and the mountain base region of the trans-Pecos country. Over the greater part of the State the rainfall is sufficient to insure a successful grain crop without irrigation. The normal annual precipitation ranges from 50 inches along the eastern boundary to about 10 inches in the western counties. Irrigation is practiced extensively in the rice growing counties on and near the Gulf of Mexico and in the localities in the valleys of the Rio Grande and Pecos Rivers, where the annual precipitation is light.

Population. The population of Texas in 1909 was 3,896,542, an increase of 27.8 per cent from 1899 to 1909. At that rate of increase the present population would be 4,779,780; however, the rate of increase was undoubtedly greater on account of the increased activities in oil fields and industrial lines that brought an influx of people from other sections of the country. In 1910 75.9 per cent of the people of the State lived on farms or in cities or villages with a population less than 2500. This was a decrease of 7 per cent as compared to the census of 1900. The wage-earners of the State number 70,230 according to the last census report, and were employed by 4588 establishments.

Railways. Transportation facilities of the State are exceptionally good. In 1918 there were 15,739 miles of railway track, not counting logging roads, tramways, inter-urban and other lines not meeting the requirements of common carriers. At that time there were 116 railroad companies operating in the State.

Agriculture. Texas was the only State in the Union which in 1919 produced more than a billion dollars' worth of agricultural products. The census of 1919 indicated that there were at that time 417,770 farms, 47.4

per cent of which were operated by owners. The average per acre value of farm land at that time was $14.53. Texas in 1919 led all other States in the production of "King Cotton" and ranked third in the production of "King Corn."

Cotton. The 1919 crop is estimated as 3,064,977 bales, valued at more than $536,374,000. This is more than one-fifth of the total estimated production of the United States. During the season of 1918 and 1919, it is estimated that 1,637,783 bales of cotton were sent to Great Britain, France and other continental ports from Texas. Texas has the world's great cotton port. During November of 1919, 418,000 bales were shipped from this port.

Corn. The 1919 corn crop for the State of Texas was 202,800,000 bushels, valued at $239,304,000. This was an increase of about 137,000,000 bushels as compared to the crop of 1918. Only two other States had higher total yields than this.

The State ranks third in oats production, eighth in winter wheat production and second in broom corn and peanuts. One-twelfth of the sweet potatoes in the United States in 1919 were produced in Texas. Texas leads all other States in production of grain sorghum, producing twice as much as the two States with the next largest yield and a little less than one-half the total production of the United States. Texas also produced more than one-seventh of the total rice produced in this country; the 1919 crop was 6,998,000 bushels, valued at $19,500,000.

Records of the United States Bureau of Markets show that shipments of produce from Texas to out-of-State markets during 1919 totaled more than 13,662 car loads.

Live Stock. Texas in 1919 ranked third in aggregate value of live stock. The total value of cattle, hogs, sheep, horses and mules is estimated as being $572,000,000. The estimated value of meat animals in the State is $348,000,000. Only two States have more horses than Texas. There are 1,199,000, valued at $115,104,000. This State has more mules than any State in the Union, the total being just a little less than the total mules in Georgia and Missouri combined. Texas mules have a total value of $109,760,000. The dairy cows in this State number 1,138,000, valued at $87,626,000. Beef cattle number 4,458,000, valued at $186,344,000. Texas has more than 2,790,000 sheep, valued at $27,621,000. The wool clip in 1919 was more than 14,000,000 pounds. Most of the Texas wool is shipped to Eastern markets, shipments being made by water. It is estimated that Texas will produce in 1920 more than 1,575,000 pounds of mohair, worth at least $945,000. It is estimated that Texas produced in 1919 more than one-half of the mohair produced in the United States. In 1919 in Texas there were 2,356,000 hogs, valued at $45,942,000.

Industrial. The 1914 Census of Manufacturers indicated that at that time there were 5084 manufacturing establishments in the State, employing more than 78,850 people. The total capital invested was $283,545,000, and total value of products was $361,279,000.

In manufacturing may be found one of the largest items of the State's wealth.

Banks. There are 1708 banks in the State, with total resources of more than $1,414,920,080. In 1880 there were only thirteen National banks, with total capital of but $1,300,000; today there are 552, with total resources of $965,855,000. On February 28, 1920, there were 964 State banks, with total resources of $411,165,080. In 1906, there were only 136 such banks, with capital stock of little more than $4,875,000. There are also in the State 192 private banks, with resources approximately $37,900,000.

Oil. It has been estimated that more than $600,000,000 has been invested in oil in Central Texas alone and that $200,000,000 has been invested in this industry in the coastal fields, a total of $800,000,000. In 1889 the production of oil in the State was only 148 barrels. In 1919 it was 96,000,000 barrels. The total production of the State to date is more than 417,000,000 barrels. During 1919 there were 3347 wells in North Texas alone. More than one-fourth of the oil refined in the United States is refined in Texas. In January, 1920, there were operating and under construction 100 refineries. It has been estimated that the sum paid to Texas land owners for oil leases in the new fields is more than $1,000,000,000.

Lumber. The most recent figures show that Texas has 427 saw mills operating on a year 'round basis and that, in addition, there are 314 smaller mills operating through a portion of each year. The lumber output in 1918 was 1,350,000 board feet; the gradual decrease during the three-year period being caused primarily by war conditions and war-time restrictions on building and not by any scarcity of standing timber. It is estimated that the cut for 1919 will run 1,500,000,000 board feet. It is also estimated that Texas has about 25,000,000,000 feet of merchantable pine timber and 10,000,000,000 feet of mercantile hardwood timber. About 23,000 persons are employed in the lumber industry. The value of lumber manufactured in Texas annually is over $40,00,000. The capital invested in this industry is computed to be between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000; 65 to 70 per cent of the lumber manufactured in Texas is used by Texas citizens; the remainder is shipped northward, and for the most part finds markets in Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa, Illinois and adjacent States. A relatively small amount of lumber is being shipped abroad from the ports of Orange and Port Arthur. The citizens of Texas use fully as much lumber as is manufactured in the State, and an export supply is available because the Panhandle and other parts of West Texas have quite a lot of fir lumber shipped in from the Pacific coast and Northwest. Practically all the timber in Texas suitable for production of lumber is found in the eastern part of the State. The lumber industry in Texas ranks first in number of wage-earners, second in number of establishments and fourth in value of products, according to the United States Census of Manufacturers for 1914. Texas has about 25,000,000 acres of land covered by tree growth, or more than any other State.

Coal and Lignite. There are at this time eleven coal mines and thirty-seven lignite mines operating in the State. The daily output from the 17 coal shafts is estimated as being 1000 tons, very little of which goes to the general public, as most of it is used by the railroads. The 37 lignite mines operate through 37 shafts. The general supply of coal is taken as 8,000,000,000 tons, and the total workable area being about 8200 square miles, with additional area of about 5300 square miles in which available seams may be found. There are about 60,000 square miles in which lignite abounds. This is nearly one-half the total known lignite area in the United States. The general supply of lignite is taken as 30,000,000,000 tons. There has been a remarkable growth in the lignite industry during the past few years. In 1904 the output was estimated as little more than 421,500 tons. In 1913 it was 1,144,515 tons. Lignite is used for the most part as fuel under stationary boilers, but about 20 per cent of the production goes for making gas to be sent to gas engines. It is also used in hollow tile works for imparting porosity to the tile as well as to add strength.

Clay Products. In 1913 the State was ninth in production of common brick and sixth in value, eighth in production of front brick and sixth in value, and eleventh in sewer pipe production. In 1916 it was estimated that the value of clay products produced in this State had reached $50,000,000 or more.

Sulphur. Texas and Louisiana together produce 99 per cent of the sulphur produced in the United States. The bulk of that produced in Texas is shipped by water to Eastern fertilizer manufacturing concerns. The principal deposits in Texas are found in salt dunes of the Gulf coast plains. Freeport is the greatest sulphur district of the South. reports from the United States Tariff Commission, published in 1919, indicate that there are two companies in Texas and one in Louisiana. Up until January 1, 1919, this commission reported that two companies produced practically all of the sulphur in this country, one company in Texas and the other in Louisiana. since then, however, a third large producing company has begun operating in Texas.

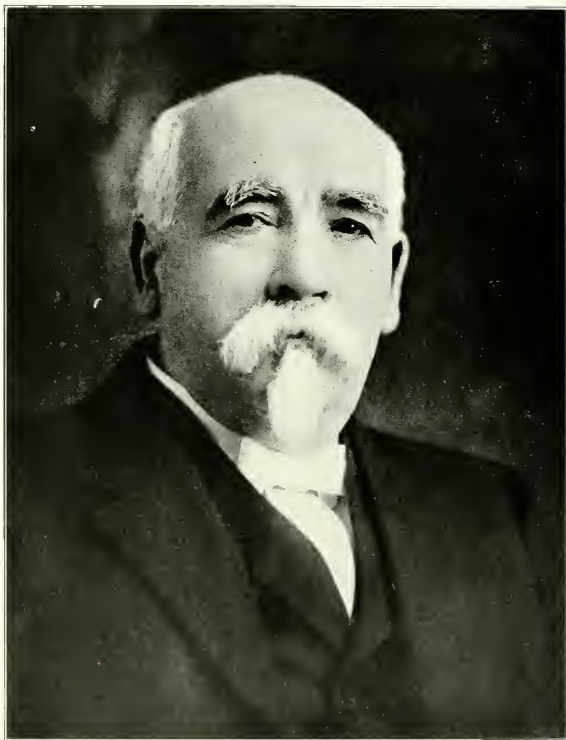

Silica. There are two companies in Texas producing silica suitable for manufacturing glass. One of these companies is at Santa Anna and the other at Athens. The sand produced at Santa Anna compares very favorably with the very best sand produced in the Oklahoma-Texas territory. The deposit at Santa Anna is described by Professor J. A. Udden, of the University of Texas, as being very fine in texture and almost soft enough to be termed pack sand. In many places it is very pure. Sand for the manufacture of bottle glass, according to Professor Udden, can probably be obtained in our southern coast country from the drifting sand dunes. As the geologic mapping of various counties progresses it is expected that deposits of glass sand will be found in such counties as Decatur, Weatherford, Hood, Erath, Eastland, Comanche, Callahan, Brown, Coleman, Mills and possibly Lampasas. There are at this time two companies in this State producing window glass and one bottle glass.

Iron Ore. Valuable iron ore deposits are found in east and northeast Texas. These deposits are of excellent character, the ore containing from 55 to 57 per cent metallic ore. The area that contains workable ore beds is about 1200 square miles, the principal deposits being found in eleven counties. In a bulletin published by the University of Texas, in 1916, it is estimated that up to that time about $3,000,000 worth of pig iron had been produced in the State. At the present time there are ten firms in the State interested in iron ore properties. Of this number only one is known to have produced in 1919, shipping considerable quantities of ore to Alabama. It is not possible to make a conservative estimate of the amount of good grade brown ore to be had, but it is said to be between 600,000,000 to 1,000,000,000 tons.

Quicksilver. Principal deposits of quicksilver in this State are to be found in Brewster County. Real possibilities in developing this mineral have hardly been touched. The ore has been found in an area of about thirty miles from east to west and twenty miles from north to south. In 1917 10,791 flasks, valued at $1,136,000, were produced in Texas.

Cement. All the materials essential to the manufacture of Portland cement are found in the regions around Dallas, Sherman and San Antonio. There are eight cement companies in Texas putting out large production. Some of the highest grade cement in the world is produced in Texas. Opportunity for further development of this industry is very attractive, especially when the large appropriations that have been made for road development and the enormous amount of construction work being done in the State are taken into consideration.

Services Rendered by the Hon. John Henry Kirby

AS LUMBER ADMINISTRATOR IN THE WORLD WAR

ON April 27, 1917, Mr. Kirby received a telegram from Mr. B. M. Baruch, at Washington, containing the wish of the President that he should serve as a member of the Raw Materials Committee of the Counsel of National Defense. He answered that he would be glad to render any service in his power, and would leave at once, arriving in Washington the following Monday morning. He closed his desk and left for Washington and served throughout the period when the nation was mobilizing all industries as an effective war measure. He served during the period when the lumber industry, acting under the direction of the Lumber Committee of the Counsel of National Defense, of which Mr. Kirby was a member, rendered such conspicuous and exceptional service in building cantonments and other plants necessary for the successful conduct of the war.

In May, 1917, he was unanimously chosen President of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, composed of all the lumber manufacturing associations in the United States, regardless of species of wood production in which they are engaged. He was chosen because of his power of organization and capacity for administration. Under his leadership the war work of these industries was conducted in a most orderly way and in a manner in the highest degree satisfactory and acceptable to the Government.

In March, 1918, he was requested by Chairman Edward N. Hurley, of the United States Shipping Board, to accept the duties of Lumber Administrator for the South for the purpose of furnishing to the Emergency Fleet Corporation, engaged in building boats for the United States Shipping Board, timbers and other material of wood so much needed in that construction. At this time German frightfulness through the cruel and diabolical use of the submarine was sinking the shipping of all Nations more rapidly than the tonnage could be produced and there was great anxiety in the United States Shipping Board as well as in all America. Every energy, resource and power of this Government was then being devoted to a shipbuilding program. Thousands of contracts for wooden ships had been made both on the Atlantic and Pacific, as well as on the Gulf, and shipbuilders were complaining that the material was not reaching them expeditiously. In this crisis Mr. Hurley turned to Mr. Kirby with request that he perform this very patriotic duty. Mr. Kirby, who was then in Washington, promptly accepted and immediately returned to the South for the purpose of entering upon the duties of the position. He returned to his home in Houston for one day and then went direct to New Orleans where, on March 21st, he took charge of the timber section of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He called to his assistance twenty-one practical lumbermen from all of the lumber-producing States of the South, who joined him in New Orleans and without pay served the government with such efficiency that within five days from the time he took charge of this office every requirement of every shipyard on the Atlantic and Gulf Coast, from New Hampshire to Texas, was filled or the material required was in transit.

Mr. Kirby remained continuously on the job in New Orleans from March 21st until the following August and during that period the great wood ship building program of the Emergency Fleet Corporation was not halted a minute for lack of timber supplies, and at the conclusion of his services there was sufficient timber in the government yards at points where required to build all the ships under contract.

Having finished his tasks there was no need that he should serve longer and on August 23, Mr. Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, wrote him from Philadelphia thanking him for his services in these words:

"I am writing this letter to express to you my sincere thanks and appreciation of the splendid and faithful services which you rendered to us as Lumber Administrator. I am quite sure the work which you did was based on purely patriotic motives and was, no doubt, at a considerable sacrifice of your own interests. We are deeply grateful for your untiring efforts which were of the greatest help to us when most needed. Again thanking you and with kindest regards, I am

Very truly yours,

CHARLES M. SCHWAB,
Director General.

HISTORiette OF TEXAS

BY THE HISTORY CLUB OF SAN ANTONIO,

Mrs. J. K. Beretta, President

THE history of Texas is unique in many ways. First, we are the only State which has been under the dominion of six flags; second, we are the only State which has been an independent Republic; third, we are the only State which really has a flag of its own; fourth, only one other State besides Texas (excepting the original colonies) came into the Union without passing the probation stage of being a territory.

The first settlement in Texas was made by LaSalle, in the name of France, early in 1685, on the Gulf coast, being called Fort St. Louis. Two years later the stout-hearted LaSalle was slain by traitorous hands.

During this time Spain became much exercised over the news that France had laid hands upon what Spain considered her territory, for she claimed everything bordering on the Gulf of Mexico. She sent Captain DeLeon with his Spanish soldiers to oust the French from Fort St. Louis. They, however, found that the colonists, left without a leader, had nearly all been massacred and the fort had been abandoned. DeLeon, taking possession in the name of Spain, it is said, called the country Texas because of the neighboring tribe of friendly Indians—the word Texas, in their tongue, meaning friends. Others claim that our name came from the Tehas Indians.

The Spaniards established themselves in Texas and their Franciscan monks founded our wonderful Missions, the most famous being the Alamo, in 1744; San Jose, begun in 1718, and Concepcion, all on the San Antonio River. The two latter were centers of activity for nearly a century.

Being a part of the State of Coahuila, Mexico, Texas passed under the dominion of Mexico in 1821, when Mexico established its independence from Spain.

American colonists filtered in gradually and finally became numerous and important. Mexico, becoming alarmed at the increasing numbers of Americans, resolved to crush their rising power. Many battles followed, including the massacre of the Alamo, on March 6th, 1836, and culminating with the victory of the Americans, under General Sam Houston, in the Battle of San Jacinto, on April 21st, 1836.

Shortly afterward Texas formally declared her independence and established herself as a republic. Mexico refused to acknowledge the independence of Texas and when, in 1845, the Republic entered the United States as the State of Texas, war between the United States and Mexico resulted.

Texas progressed rapidly until the War Between the States, when it joined the Southern Confederacy in 1861.

Unlike in the other Southern States, the Federal armies did not penetrate the interior and Texas thus escaped the ravages and horrors of war, although it did suffer, as did its sister States, during the period of reconstruction after the war.

Those days of trouble and humiliation under military rule passed with the retirement of Governor Davis and the election of Governor Coke in 1874, the free choice of the people of Texas. Since that time Texas has become the Empire State of the South, greater in population and wealth than any of the other Southern States.

To Texas:

Ever-generous Mother of Man, whether under the fleur-de-lis of France, the golden and bloody banner of Spain, the eagle and cactus of Mexico, the lone star of the Texas Republic, the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy, or the Stars and Stripes of the Union—glorious in your past history, may you be even greater in the future—Texas, fair Texas!

Mr. J. O. Mack is President and General Manager of the Mack Manufacturing Company, Macks Street, Houston, Texas. He is a business man of note and an inventor of national reputation.

For the past ten years Mr. Mack has been an oil operator in the gulf coast fields, during which time he was President of the Packard Oil Company and Perry Oil Company of Edgerly, Louisiana, the Vinton Development Company and Gulf Coast Oil Company of Vinton, Louisiana, General Manager of the Merrimac Oil Company of Sour Lake, Texas.

He has been directly and indirectly connected with many of the best oil operators in the Louisiana and Texas fields, where he could study operation at first hand. The large manufacturing plant of which he is the head, is devoting most of its capacity to manufacturing patented articles developed by him during that time.

Mr. Mack spent several months of the last year of the war in Washington, D. C. and New York City, at the request of the Government, where he developed an invention to be used on the western front. It had the endorsement of the most prominent authorities in this country.

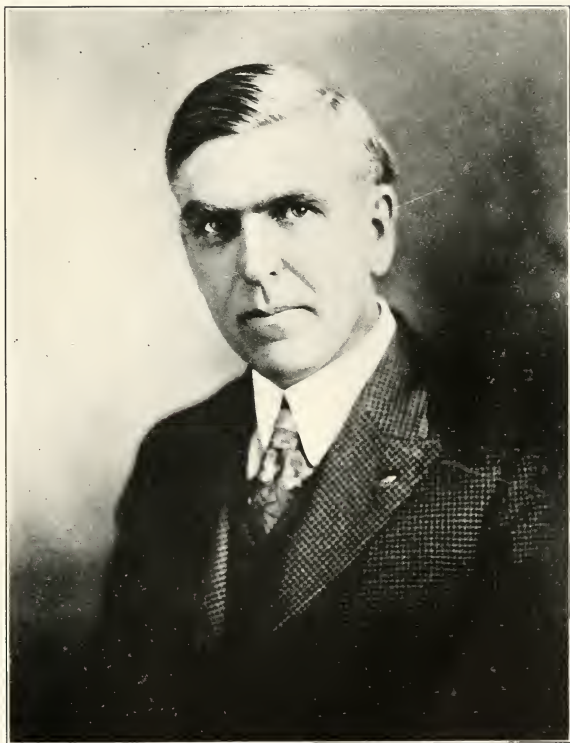

Among the authorities who passed on and recommended its adoption by the War Department were some of the leading engineers of this country, together with some sixty United States Senators and Congressmen.

Mr. Mack has letters from Secretary-of-War Baker, William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the United States, Vice President and General Manager of the Hudson-Manhattan Railway who was the engineer in charge, under Mr. McAdoo, when they built the Hudson River Tunnel; he also built the tunnel at Paris, France. Marshall Foch, General John J. Pershing, Theodore Roosevelt, Thomas A. Edison, R. A. Bachman, Vice President and General Manager of the Thos. A. Edison Company, and the French, English and Italian ambassadors wrote Mr. Mack personally that they were anxious to see it tried out on the Huns. Mr. Mack met practically all of these men personally and they discussed his patent with him freely at different times and endorsed it to the War Department.

MANUFACTURING

BY THE MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION OF SAN ANTONIO.

INDUSTRIALLY, Southwest Texas is now demanding the attention of the Nation's most enterprising men. This is chiefly because of its vast undeveloped resources and the practically unlimited opportunities its great territory offers.

ARTICLES MANUFACTURED IN SOUTHWEST TEXAS.

In San Antonio alone, over thirteen hundred different articles are included in the output of its three hundred factories, which distribute more than five million tons of wares over an unusually large territory. Southwest Texas is dependent on no one class of industry for its support, but manufactures an unusually diversified line of products. Some of the principal articles produced are: Brick, packing house products, dairy products, foundry and machine shop products, automobiles, trucks, tractors, candy, waterproofing materials, belt dressing, jewelry, soft drinks, cottonseed products, soap, cigars, saddlery, chili products, mattresses, vinegar, gasoline and other crude oil products, disinfectants, pickles, flour, marble yard products, celluloid wares, books, plaster products, planing mill products, optical goods, artificial teeth, toilet preparations, drugs, bakery products, art glass, macaroni and similar foods, packing boxes, cement, electricity and artificial gas, tanks, tents and awnings, engravings, art goods, hollow tile, crushed rock, brooms, asphalt and an endless variety of other high-grade wares.

FUEL.

Oil and lignite are the principle fuels used for manufacturing purposes. Waterpower is also developed to a limited extent. Electricity for industrial purposes is furnished at reasonable rates in the larger cities, as also is artificial gas, while the greatest lignite deposits in the United States extend throughout the region. Coal of a higher grade is also produced here and is available for those concerns which need it. Natural gas is going to waste in many localities at the rate of millions of cubic feet per day, awaiting the man who can harness and deliver it at reasonable rates to the cities for industrial usage.

MARKET.

Distribution of Southwest Texas manufactured products reaches all parts of the United States, and while an enormous developed Texas territory also furnishes a ready market for these goods, an excellent foreign trade has recently been developed with Mexico, South and Central America, West Indies, Cuba, Italy, France, Great Britain, and Germany with the assistance of the Export Trade Bureau of the San Antonio Manufacturers' Association, which organization is at all times ready to assist prospective Texas shippers.

FACTORIES NEEDED.

It is apparent that there is room for a number of new factories in this fast developing section, such as knitting mills, textile mills, hosiery mills, cooperage works, furniture factories, glove and shoe factories, fruit and vegetable preserving plants, fertilizer, floor tile concerns, tanneries, pottery and china works, and a number of others.

All factories desiring to locate here can rely on receiving hearty practical co-operation from the rapidly increasing buying public of the great Southwest.

RAW MATERIALS.

Southwest Texas is particularly fortunate in possessing a bountiful supply of many high-grade materials. Great quantities of the following abound: Glass sand, kaolin, Fuller's earth, limestone, cotton, fire clay, marble, crude oil, building stone, brick and pottery clays, asphalt, trap rock, also some quicksilver, molybdenum and novaculite. An unlimited supply of artesian water is another asset which has attracted a number of industries to this section.

TRANSPORTATION.

Transportation facilities are adequate and satisfactory, being taken care of by fourteen railroads. In Port Aransas, Southwest Texas possesses a rapidly developing ocean outlet of its own, not to mention the excellent available connection facilities with the ports of Galveston, Houston, New Orleans, Beaumont, and Texas City, and the border points of entry at Laredo and Eagle Pass.

The Part of the Texas Doctors in the War

BY T. T. JACKSON, M. D., SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS

President Elect State Medical Association of Texas

To tell what the Texas doctors have done in this war is an impossible task. It would be to ask of the wind that blew through the camps and cantonments of our army while all slept but the surgeon and the sufferer; it would be to make a witness of the mother and father of the boy who has been brought back to them from the gates of death; to make a witness of the man who bears under his blouse the wound of death; and more, it would be to hear the stories told by the souls of soldiers who sleep under the poppies of France—stories we shall never hear. I can not do this, but there are some facts and some truths ready at hand that may be told.

There was commissioned from Texas the following medical personnel:

Army	825
Navy	50
National Guard	52
Total	927

Added to this should be 142 more recommended for commission at the time of the signing of the armistice. There are about 5000 active practitioners in the State. Texas actually contributed to the war one doctor for every 5.2 men in active medical practice. This is a greater contribution than that of any other profession, except that of nursing. Late in March of 1918, the officers of the State Medical Association of Texas made a preliminary classification of the doctors of the State, as to their availability for military service. Later, the Texas Committee of the Committee of American Physicians for Medical Preparedness, under the leadership of Dr. W. B. Russ, began a survey of the profession and secured the detail of Lt. Col. Holman Taylor for this work. After this the Council of National Defense, Medical Section, took over the work of the aforesaid committee. At the urgent solicitation of the Council of National Defense, Medical Section, a more complete survey and classification of the doctors of Texas was begun in May by the acting Secretary, Dr. I. C. Chase, in connection with the State Committee of the Council of National Defense, Medical Section. This was an enormous task thrown upon the central office without any extra compensation to the employees of the Association. Biographical data of great value concerning almost every doctor in the State was accumulated and an up-to-date directory was compiled. As this work of final classification was about to begin and the results be forwarded to Washington, on August 15th, Maj. Franklin Martin wired that the central committee of the Council of National Defense, Medical Section, had been reorganized and would, from Washington, begin a new classification, and urged that complete questionnaires from the State, secured on new blanks, be forwarded to Washington within a week. Blanks for this purpose were mailed from Washington and a new organization of county advisers were appointed by Washington authorities. This resulted in the organization of the "Volunteer Medical Service Corps," with a new executive committee of the Texas Governing Board of the Volunteer Medical Service Corps." This new Committee began new classifications, but had hardly started its work when the armistice was signed. Its work was not complete at the time the Volunteer Medical Service Corps was suspended in April.

This was the fourth classification undertaken in Texas during the war. Although these classifications, for want of a central unified plan of action, seemed abortive, they doubtless awakened a great deal of interest and lead indirectly to an increase in applications for commissions. The amount of work voluntarily contributed by the district supervisors, councilors, executive committee and county secretaries, in these surveys, can hardly, and probably never will, be appreciated by the mass of the profession.

In connection with the draft machinery the records show that almost all available doctors took some part of the burden upon their shoulders, in addition to other sacrifices that they were making and labor that they were doing. The records of the Texas Boards in sending clean and able men to the front ties Connecticut for second place in the low number of rejections, Texas having 5.12 per cent; Connecticut, 5.11 per cent, while Maryland hardly exceeded Texas and Connecticut, her percentage being 4.94.

There were during this war, 600 medical men on district and local boards, and 150 on medical advisory boards, totaling 750. This, together with those commissioned in the Army, Navy and National Guard, 927, and 142 who had been recommended for commission at the time of the signing of the armistice, makes a total of 1,819, exclusive of the Volunteer Medical Service Corps. This large number of physicians serving on boards, and those actively engaged in war during hostilities, it will be remembered, was out of about 5,000 active practitioners of the state.

Everyone who made the sacrifice he was called upon to make deserves distinction. Rank played but a paltry part in this great melting pot. Some one, some time, will tell the undying story of the bravery and chivalry of our sons on the Western front.

Without comparison or criticism and with a heart full of gratitude and appreciation, I desire to say that, whatever else may be said, or whatever other viewpoint may be taken concerning the part the Texas doctors played during this war, it must be conceded that they paid in full, and in every particular, their debt to their country, to humanity and to liberty. Paid even to their pound of flesh, paid with their talents, their blood, their bones and their bodies; and greater, or more than this, none could have done—and yet, they paid it frankly, willingly and cheerfully.

And while you did only the thing expected of you, you followed in the footsteps of your forebears, and the examples of your forefathers, who, when the tyranny of Mexico required our blood and treasure to procure and perpetuate freedom; when the question of secession was to be settled by the arbitrament of arms on an hundred battle fields, laid their all on the altar of their country. Your action was none the less heroic.

Not the least soul satisfying thought that warms the heart of every doctor in the contemplation of this unparalleled tragedy and unparalleled sacrifice is the realization that almost if not every physician in Texas did his or her part to the fullest. And it is pleasing and gratifying that there is an imperishable record showing that many who did not and could not for many reasons put on the uniform, did their full duty for humanity and freedom. Those who gave their lives, health, talents and time, to their country, serving in the very forefront of the battle lines; those who spent gruelling hours over wrecked and torn humanity on operating tables in advanced hospitals; those serving in base and post hospitals, and cantonments in this country, camp infirmaries and all, in whatsoever position they served, too much cannot be said in praise, and no State can be more proud of her sons.

I do not undertake to determine by what occult means our government selected physicians for this duty or that, or why or how the rank or status was fixed; who was sent overseas and who was left, or who was placed at the very forefront of responsible duty or kept in the rear; but this I do assert, the best was neither taken nor left, given higher or lower rank. And I, here and now desire to pay tribute to the doctor who, forsaking all else, clung to his country in her hour of peril, regardless of pay, emolument or rank, or where, what or how he served. Among them there must be no distinction. If our government was short of surgeons in France, if our colleagues were overworked, if merical men were needed, the responsibility cannot be laid at the door of the Texas surgeons, for each of you know the constant cry from the beginning to the end from the Texas doctors was, "Here am I, send me." If you were marooned, forgotten, overlooked and left behind, the responsibility was not ours. And thank God every Texas surgeon did his duty and his full duty, regardless of personal equation and the refrain was "Place me where I can do the most good."

It is with the keenest pleasure that I now turn to the other side of the picture and am able to say with pride and greatest pleasure, that while those in uniform were doing their full part, the civil surgeon was doing his and doing more. Too much cannot be said of and too much credit can not be given to the unfortunate surgeon who had to stay at home and still do his duty. The draft machinery, Red Cross, the increased work incidental to the departure of many surgeons, gave opportunity to those who stayed at home to pay and pay in full the debt that they owed their country, and it is unnecessary to say again that it was paid to the fullest. Especially should a wreath be laid at the feet of the older practitioners of medicine, God bless them, who had partially retired from practice when the war came, but who again picked up the thread of practice and devoted themselves assiduously to the work that had previously been done by younger men. I know physicians over 65 years of age who during the war did not decline a single call; and I feel that more than this, no man has done. With examples like these, is it to be wondered that our younger men filled full the measure of their duty?

And truly the doctor to whom my heart goes out the most, is the unfortunate surgeon whom circumstances and conditions prevented from going to the front when his soul cried out to join the innumerable caravan that was marching on to victory or to death. Texas had many of these and they carried a burden and did a duty absolutely sublime in its nature and stupendous in its character; and the services they rendered to our State Association, to our institutions of learning and to many semi-public and private enterprises, of which the world could know nothing, were second to no duty that any son of the State has done.

I cannot refrain from here mentioning the one man who stands out particularly prominent in this kind of service: the man who has carried the burden of our Journal and assisted in the affairs of our State Association, as no other man could have done. I refer to Dr. Ira Carleton Chase. When the war was apparently tumbling our house down around our ears, when it looked as though suspension and disorganization stared us in the face, it was he who stepped into the breach and gave us his time and his talent to a degree that could not have been expected of any one.

These things and more have been done by the doctors of Texas. We have done our duty, done it willingly and cheerfully, not boastfully, or arrogantly; yet we do boast of one man, the valiant man of our profession whom we loaned to the line to command the most feared organization on earth—a regiment of Texas Infantry. I refer to Lieutenant Colonel Holman Taylor, who led a regiment of our boys through the fiery furnace. And now his duty done, he lays down his title and rank of Commission and proudly assumes that of Doctor of Medicine and becomes again our beloved and efficient Secretary.

The Texas Public Health Association

Written Especially for the Standard Blue Book

THE Texas Public Health Association, with state offices at 616 Littlefield Building, Austin, is a society incorporated under the laws of Texas and formed by a number of prominent Texas citizens who are interested in health—especially the fight against tuberculosis.

The principal aims of the association are: To disseminate knowledge concerning the causes and methods of prevention of communicable diseases, including tuberculosis; investigation of the prevalence of such diseases in Texas, and the collecting and publishing of useful information; securing of proper legislation to promote the relief and suppression of such diseases; co-operation with other health organizations; promoting active public health work; and encouragement of adequate provision for consumptives and those suffering from other preventable diseases, by establishment of sanatoria, dispensaries, and otherwise.

The activities of the association are financed chiefly through the sale of Christmas Seals and the gifts of friends interested in public health. All the funds received are used for health work, the association's share going to aid Texans in Texas.

The officers of the association for 1920 are: Dr. Z. T. Scott, Austin, president; Dr. Elva A. Wright, Houston, first vice president; J. A. Allison, Fort Worth, second vice president; J. B. Rawlings, Fort Worth, secretary; H. A. Wroe, Austin, treasurer; and D. M. Alexander, Fort Worth, attorney.

Among the members of the board of directors, numbering 48, are the following: Dr. R. W. Baird, Dallas; Mrs. W. S. Benson, Alvin; C. M. Bishop, Georgetown; Miss Annie Webb Blanton, Austin; Dr. W. M. Brumby, Waco; J. W. Butler, Waco; Dr. I. C. Chase, Fort Worth; Dr. Boyd Cornick, San Angelo; J. S. Dickey, Jr., Henrietta; John W. Everman, Dallas; Mrs. Florence Floore, Cleburne; Dr. C. W. Doddard, Austin; Dr. Frank Gregg, Austin; J. C. Hardy, Belton; Governor W. P. Hobby, Austin; Howell Johnson, Fort Stockton; J. L. Lancaster, Dallas; Mrs. George D. Morgan, Galveston; Mrs. F. W. McAllister, San Antonio; Dr. J. B. McKnight, Sanatorium; Mrs. Eltweed Pomeroy, Donna; W. F. Ramsey, Dallas; Edward Titche, Dallas; Robert E. Vinson, Austin; Mrs. E. A. Watters, Fort Worth; and Mrs. James B. Wells, Brownsville.

Dwight E. Breed is the Executive Secretary of the association, and heads a field staff composed of: Miss Winnie I. Bracy, assistant to the executive and Texas Modern Health Crusade Director; George F. Granger, field secretary; Miss Pearl N. Hyer, R. N., public health nurse; Wilbur A. Fischer, publicity secretary; R. C. Ortega, Mexican secretary; and F. R. Barnwell, lecturer to Negroes.

Some of the work done by the association in 1919 includes the distribution of 1,171,942 pieces of health literature over the state; 431 lectures given to 68,506 people by members of the staff; 326 school talks made before 60,227 school children; field workers conferred with 134,017 Texas people on health.

The association carried the Modern Health Crusade to 416,000 school children in 135 counties of the state; the public health nurse examined 2,827 children in 60 Texas cities and talked to 17,000 school children; health surveys were made in four Texas cities: the Mexican secretary lectured to 4,904 of his people, and formed health societies; the lecturer to Negroes traveled 8,149 miles, addressed 30,654 school children and talked with 55,541 Negroes on health.

Other important work of the association for 1919 was: Inspection of sanatoria; employment of publicity secretary to assist in public health education; publishing a monthly health magazine; sending a Mexican health exhibit, the only one of its kind in the United States, among the Mexican people; assistance of local anti-tuberculosis societies and co-operation with other health organizations; health speakers sent to summer normal institutes; sent a field worker into 11 army camps where he lectured to 18,025 soldiers on health; and furnished a speaker on health for the tour of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

AUSTIN

By THE AUSTIN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The natural beauty of the country surrounding Austin was responsible for this particular point in Texas being selected for the location of the State Capitol.

Austin is the hub for a territory of 265,000 square miles, within which live nearly five million people. It is therefore befitting that this city with the environment which nature has given it, should be the leader of all the cities of Texas in art and education.

The State University, which is located in Austin, now has more than 4,000 students..

The Texas School for the Deaf, the Texas School for the Blind, the Texas Wesleyan College, the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, the School for Defectives.

Surrounding the city there is rich agricultural land. The major portion of this soil is black prairie land, all of which is under cultivation and is producing abundant crops of cotton, corn and hay. There is also a lesser portion of the county covered by the Colorado River Valley, practically every acre of which is under cultivation. This soil produces large crops of cotton, corn, oats, vegetables and fruits.

For centuries the Colorado river has been cutting its way through the mountains until it has left high cliffs and peaks which offer remarkable scenery for the pedestrian or autoist. Auto roads traverse the hills and valleys of this section. White perch, bass, buffalo trout and catfish are found in large quantities in the mountain streams and in Lake Austin, which is nearly 28 miles long and offers a source of attractive outings all the year around.

The City of Austin has the commission form of Government, which has proven most successful ever since its adoption in 1909. The aggregate wealth of the city is estimated at $75,000,000.00, and the bonded debt is $2,545,000.00. The directory census of 1920 gives this city a population of 47,409.

The Bank Clearings for Austin in 1919 were $213,728,048.82, and the Postoffice receipts for 1919 were $249,773.84.

Many parks are scattered about the city, their grassy slopes dotted with live oaks ages old and mountain laurel grows in profusion. Among these are Wooldridge Park, Pease Park and City Park at Lake Austin.

The area of the city is 16 square miles, and the altitude ranges from 650 to 900 feet. There are several attractively parked additions to the city, among which are Hyde Park, Aldridge Place, Enfield and Travis Heights. There are 185 miles of streets, 21 miles of which are paved. There are 66 miles of sewer mains and 63 miles of gas mains.

Every church denomination is represented in Austin. Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. buildings contribute to the building of character. The golf links at the Country Club are unexcelled. Being kept in perfect condition they are well known throughout the country. The transportation service, to every section of the city, with over 21 miles of street railway and the reduced fare to school children, does much to assist in home building.

The drainage of Austin is perfect and complete. The city is located on hills, and the many miles of streets, paved with bitulithic and brick, drain perfectly. All paved streets are washed and swept, and the unpaved streets are sprinkled.

Main line railroads to Austin are the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway; International Northern Railway and Southern Pacific Railway.

There are many cities which are greater commercial towns or more active industrial centers, but there is no city which excels Austin as a place in which to live. Its people and its institutions, as well as the natural environment surrounding the city, make it a place where character stands above everything and where the best to be found in life can be obtained.

BEAUMONT

Is located in Jefferson County, Texas, on the Neches river, connected with the Gulf of Mexico with a 26-foot tide level canal, and is the only fresh water harbor on the Gulf; a sheltered port free from tropical storms. Through Beaumont and the Panama Canal commerce will find an easy and short route to the western coast of South America, a country rich in resources and heretofore inaccessible to the United States except through San Francisco or around the Horn. It is, by reason of the location and concentration of railroads, the center of great natural wealth in Timber, Oil and Minerals.

Beaumont's proximity to the Gulf tempers the summer sun, and it is cooler than in the central Mississippi valley, a southeast breeze from salt water prevails in the hottest months. In the winter the temperature rarely goes below the freezing point, and the days are warm and balmy.

It has a population of 43,000.

Assessed property valuation $35,000,000.

Tax rate, $1.57.

Bonded indebtedness, $2,485,900.00.

Accumulated sinking fund, $590,215.

Municipally owned and operated water supply system furnishing 3,000,000 gallons of pure and wholesome water daily. Maximum capacity of the plant, 12,000 gallons every twenty-four hours.

Thoroughly modern wharf and dock system, municipally owned and operated.

Five brick fire stations, all well equipped and the most efficient fire department of any city its size in the United States.

Thirty-five miles of paved and shelled streets.

Ninety miles of concrete sidewalks.

Thirty miles of main sewers.

Thirty miles of gas mains.

A well organized and efficient health department, with health board, bacteriologist, sanitary inspectors, meat, food, drug and dairy inspection, city garbage collection and incinerating plant.

Beaumont is the great jobbing and distributing center for Southeast Texas and Southwest Louisiana. It enjoys the advantage of low inbound rail freight rates, due to actual water competition.

Beaumont is the center of the largest rice producing area in the United States, and one of the fastest-growing fields of diversified agriculture in the Southwest. It is in the rain belt with an average of 48.88 inches of rainfall annually, well distributed through the year. Ideal climate and fertile soil permit farming the year around, with a harvest possible every month. The home of the South Texas State Fair, the second largest agricultural fair in Texas, is at Beaumont. The headquarters of the Southern Rice Growers' Association are at Beaumont.

Beaumont is one of the centers of the great Southwestern oil fields. Here is located the far-famed Spindle Top Field, the site of the famous "Lucas Gusher," the discovery well. Beaumont, through her oil pipe lines, is at the mouth of nearly every producing oil field in the Southwest. Four big controlling line companies and eight lines center here. It is also the chief city of the extensive Yellow Pine, Cypress and Hardwood Lumber manufacturing territory of Southeast Texas and Southwest Louisiana. There are 135 saw mills within Beaumont's trade territory, with a daily output of over 10,000,000 feet. With crude oil and water transported coke and coal, fuel is cheap and great industries draw an abundant supply of labor.

BRENHAM

By THE BRENHAM CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

BRENHAM is the most important point on the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe between Galveston and Temple, and the most important point on the Houston and Texas Central between Houston and Austin, hence is worthy of more than ordinary attention. The history of the Lone Star State is so firmly bound to Washington County and Brenham that the names of these run through almost every chronicle or narrative of early days. In those earlier days man liked the fertile fields that surrounded Brenham and chose it for a fitting place to live. From a pioneer village of the Texas Republic days Brenham has grown into a modern little city, with every advantage, in education and environment, that is found in larger places.

Brenham was attractive to those good old Southern families who belong to the group of the Cavaliers. The ease and grace with which they builded this little city upon the chosen hills is still evident. Then came a thrifty group of immigrants—men and women of splendid stock, who had chosen America as their home, and with these and those who later came from other States Brenham gradually developed, until today, while largely depending upon the farms for its prosperity and growth, it boasts of important manufacturing.

There is no better farm land than that which surrounds Brenham, and especially that found only a short distance away in the valley of the Brazos. But so varied are the soil conditions about Brenham that every character of crop is grown, and the forests are filled with the choicest woods. Stock and poultry raising have made great strides in recent years and fruit raising comes in for an important place. The largest Japanese persimmon orchard in Texas is located near Brenham.

The principal manufactories of the city are: Cotton mills, cotton seed oil mill, iron foundries, cotton compresses, gas plant, machine shops, bottling works, tin shops, farm implement manufactory, peanut butter manufactory, creamery, products, saddles and harness and marble and granite finishing works. The city has two daily and two weekly newspapers.

The city public schools are affiliated, with substantial credits, with all Southern colleges and many others of the Nation. Blinn College and the Sacred Heart convent are located here, with valuable properties, school buildings and dormitories. There are churches of all the well-known denominations, with splendid edifices.

Brenham's four wholesale grocery firms supply a large trade territory. The retail stores are the pride of the city. They are modern in every respect. This city offers splendid opportunities in every line of trade. The banks, all with substantial capitals, reserves and deposits, reflect the prosperity of the community. They show total deposits of $2,000,000.00. The taxable valuation of Washington County is $12,000,000 while that of the City of Brenham is over $3,000,000.

Oil developments have attracted considerable attention to Washington County, and with wells in the field near the city which are producing a small quantity of oil and deep tests which soon will be made, the petroleum possibilities of the county promise to be thoroughly exploited.

Bonds have been sold for the expenditure of $1,500,000 on roads of the county, one of the principal projects of which will be completing the Washington County portion of the Houston-Austin highway. Wonderful possibilities of growth are opening up. New houses are being erected and new businesses are constantly being started. Brenham is in the real road of progress. Its property values have increased tremendously and with the new incentive which it is receiving toward material growth it offers opportunities in almost every line of endeavor and appeals, as a place to select for a real home town, like few other places in the State.

CORSICANA

"THE CITY AWAKE"

Written Especially for the Standard Blue Book
By THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

CCORSICANA is the county seat of Navarro County, and is located in the "Heart of the Black Land Belt" of Central Texas.

Corsicana has the distinction of having the first Oil Field discovered west of the Mississippi river. This field was first brought in in 1896 and has been producing ever since, in fact the first wells brought in are still producing. The daily production of the Corsicana field is now 1,500 barrels of high gravity oil. The present production all comes from shallow wells, but there are now nine deep tests going down and twenty more proposed. This field has never had a deep test for oil and as all of the other oil fields of this State and Oklahoma have been shallow fields before the deep oil was found, the operations now in progress and those to follow will undoubtedly find the deeper sands and the daily production will be increased many thousand times. Corsicana is the home of the Magnolia Petroleum Company, which company owns many producing wells in this field and has a big refinery located here. The output of this refinery is several million dollars annually. In addition the Magnolia Petroleum Company has three eight-inch pipe lines running through this city and county, two from the Kansas, Oklahoma and North Texas fields to the Gulf and one from the Ranger field to the Gulf. One of their largest pumping stations is located here. Two other refining companies are being organized and will soon be operating big plants near this city. The Texas Company has two eight-inch pipe lines running through this city and county from the Kansas, Oklahoma North Texas oil fields to the Gulf and have located here one of their largest pump stations. Corsicana is the home of the American Well and Prospect Company, which company manufactures rotary oil rigs and oil well supplies and sells its products all over the world. The annual output of this company is several million dollars.

Corsicana is an important railroad and highway center, there being three trunk railroad lines, the Cotton Belt, H. & T. C. and the T. & B. V. through this city, and a branch of the Cotton Belt to Hillsboro, also there is hourly passenger and freight interurban service to all points North. There are six highway systems running through Corsicana, four of which are inter-state and two state wide. The Exall Highway north and south,—a link of the Great Lakes to the Gulf system,—the Denver Division of the Exall Highway, from Colorado to the Gulf, the D. C. D. Highway Association from Colorado to the Gulf and is extending the organization to Spokane, Washington, the Lone Star Trails Association, east and west from Savannah, Georgia, to San Diego, California, the Roger Q. Mills Highway, from Palestine to Hillsboro and the East and West Texas from Tyler to Waco. Navarro County has over 300 miles of piked roads but will soon vote a county-wide good roads bond issue of sufficient size to make all the highways and community roads permanent. This county has spent so far $1,500,000 on good roads.

Corsicana has good schools, fine churches, municipal form of government, municipally owned water system with big fresh water lake, four strong banks, splendid social opportunities, 20 miles pavement and 75 miles concrete and brick sidewalks.

Corsicana Factory output over $9,000,000. Goods sold at wholesale, over $7,000,000. Annual pay roll over $2,500,000. Population 17,500. Freight forwarded 125,000 tons. Freight received, 75,000 tons. Met all government demands and went "Over the Top" on all Red Cross, War Savings, Stamp, Liberty Bonds and other drives. The Corsicana Chamber of Commerce with 500 members is at your service.

HOUSTON

Written Especially for the Standard Blue Book
By THE HOUSTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

HOUSTON has every condition to justify her ambition to become a world port with a tremendous volume of ocean trade.

Houston has a deep water port, with a ship channel, reaching from her municipal wharves to the Gulf of Mexico, serving as the highway of ocean commerce.

How this channel was developed from an unnavigable "bayou" to its present depth and width, with ocean-going craft sailing its waters to and from Houston, forms a romantic chapter in the community life of this city.

Fifty years ago work was first begun: It required six years to complete the first unit. The work was continued with vigor and zeal, however, with the realization that success would crown the effort to make Houston a world port.

This arm of the Gulf now extends to Houston's very doors. At the head of navigation in the city limits is a "turning basin" excavated from mother earth and filled with tidewater from the sea, 25 miles distant. It is here that ships turn around and head for the sea.

On the sides of the channel at the turning basin are docks, wharves, warehouses and railway trackage and other facilities for loading and unloading cargoes. All these facilities are owned solely by the City of Houston. Although there are 18 main line railways radiating in every direction from Houston, not one foot of the channel frontage nor a mile of railway terminal facilities are owned by any private corporation. The City of Houston owns not only its docks and wharves, but its belt line railway, which connects all docks, wharves and industrial plants on the channel with the 18 main line railways. It will be impossible, therefore, for the water front of this magnificent harbor to ever be under the control of private corporations.

This tremendous development work has been done at a cost of more than seven and a half million dollars, but it is regarded as the best investment Houston ever made.

The channel was opened to shipping in 1914. The shipping growth has been so rapid that facilities for handling cargoes are now becoming severely taxed and the city government is devising ways and means of extending and enlarging those facilities.

We are now shipping Texas cotton from our wharves to the markets of England and other Nations of the old world. We have steamship service between Houston and Philadelphia, with the positive assurance that a new line between Houston and New York will be established at an early date. Boston is knocking for admission with a steamship line in order to reach the markets of the Southwest with New England manufactured goods and to secure Texas cotton and wool for the New England mills. We have established regular service between Houston and the ports of Tampico, Vera Cruz, Tuxpam and other Mexican ports. We are beginning a trade development with Mexico that promises to reach tremendous proportions.

The port of Houston, with its unparalleled facilities for loading and unloading ship cargoes, is absolutely free to commerce. No charge whatever is made against vessels entering this port. It is the only free port in the South.

Houston's population has more than doubled during the past ten years. Her building growth has been phenomenal, yet no other American city presents greater opportunity for successful industries. There are now being built here a dozen large office buildings, and there is urgent need for double that number. All lines of wholesale and retail business are enjoying the greatest prosperity in their history. Houston offers advantages to all who are seeking opportunity to come here and utilize the marvelous resources afforded for winning success. We extend a welcome to the world, and the Houston Chamber of Commerce is maintained for the purpose of lending assistance to all responsible parties who desire information or assistance in entering this field of unlimited promise.

PORT ARTHUR

By THE PORT ARTHUR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

AMONG the numerous ports which have been developed on the Gulf coast during the past two decades, Port Arthur easily takes pre-eminence in point of commodity values. In point of tonnage movement it is in advance of any Gulf port. This seeming incompatibility is due to the fact that while other Gulf ports are heavy exporters of cotton, which has a high value per ton, the bulk of Port Arthur's water movement of freight is in oil, which has not so high a value per ton.

As a vessel-owning port, Port Arthur ranks first among all ports south of Baltimore, and at the present time over 125,000 tons of American shipping carry the name of Port Arthur as their home port. Statistics recently compiled show that a total of 35,000 seamen come into this port each year.

The chief industry of the city, oil refining, was commenced with the discovery of oil on Spindle Top, early in 1901. Since then, while only two refining plants have been built in the city proper, the two concerns have each year enlarged their plants by an amount which would easily be counted for another refinery. Oil refining and shipping, with a considerable amount of general cargo movement, makes up the principal business of the city, and the population, shown by the Federal census to be between 22,000 and 23,000, is in reality something over 25,000, when the people living at the refineries and who are outside the city limits are counted.

Port Arthur has the most advanced system of public schools in the State and adaptation of the Gary system to local conditions, which provides a maximum of education in all branches, academic, vocational and ethical, combined with thorough attention to the physical development of the students. This year's scholastic enrollment is between 4500 and 5000, and the course of instruction includes everything from arithmetic to Latin, and from military designing to automobile repairing. Special classes in chemistry of oil and engineering are conducted for those wishing to study along night schools, in which adults are given special instruction and training in any branches they wish, is high in the hundreds.

Public improvement work has included construction of an excellent system of asphalt and shell paved streets, sewer, drainage and storm protection systems, garbage incinerator plant, water supply, abattoir and numerous other public facilities, owned by the municipality.

The city has been made the playground for a large section of eastern Texas and western Louisiana by the construction of a pleasure pier with an area of ten acres, extending half a mile into Lake Sabine in front of the city.

At the water front the Gulf Refining Company and the Texas Company own private docks, and the Gulf Company's docks are constructed along a private harbor or basin excavated by the company. The port has a total of 11,000 lineal feet of docks, part of concrete and part of timber construction; a grain elevator with storage capacity of 500,000 and loading capacity of 30,000 bushels per hour, working four spouts. Warehouses line 5,000 lineal feet of the wharves.

Port Arthur Canal and Dock Company, operating under State charter, own terminals with 7400 lineal feet of wharves. The Gulf Company has 2,200 feet and the Texas Company 200 feet of wharves. Railroad lines transfer from rail to ship, and vice versa. Electrically operated ten-ton boom on lumber dock. Mechanical handling facilities include cranes, magnets, hoists, conveyors, etc. Texas Company wharves equipped with traveling conveyors with spirals to hood for loading case oil, capacity 25,000 cases per day.

Dry docking facilities: At present, four repair plants. Plant under construction will handle 3500 tons. Coal bunkering: Basin Supply Company has derrick barge of 500 tons capacity; will load at rate of 75 tons per hour.

SAN ANTONIO

By THE SAN ANTONIO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

SAN ANTONIO is the greatest metropolis of the Southwest. The population is estimated at 160,000. The area of the city is 36 square miles or 23,040 acres. There are 650 miles of streets, 336 of which are paved.

There are 73 schools in the city, 34 public schools, 3 high schools and 36 private schools. The total value of school property is about $5,000,000. More than 31,477 pupils are registered in the public schools.

There are 69 churches in the city, all denominations being represented.

San Antonio has often been called the "City of Beautiful Homes." It is estimated that there are 32,000 homes in the city, 50 per cent of which are occupied by their owners. Architecture of every period and nearly every style is represented, some of the homes being among the most costly in this part of the country.

Building operations in 1918 totaled $3,754,054, the largest figures in the last 12 years, and showing a 71 per cent increase over 1917.

The city records show an assessed valuation of $132,284,847, real estate being $96,614,407 and the personal property $35,670,440. The bonded indebtedness is only $8,238,500, at an average interest rate of 5 per cent.

San Antonio has a number of the most modernly appointed and best equipped hotels in the South, among them being the Gunter, St. Anthony, the Lanier, the Randall Hotel, Argyle, Maverick, Hutchins, Garden, Crockett, Imperial, Majestic, Travelers and Hotel Arthur.

Postal receipts for 1918 were $1,145,326. In 1919, the next largest year, the receipts were $925,945.82.

San Antonio has 24 banks—National, State and private. The combined capital is more than $8,000,000. Deposits average $45,000,000. Cash on hand averages $16,000,000 and loans $36,000,000.

The last surveys of the industries show that the factories employ approximately 7000 persons, and the value of the output for 1918 was $30,712,876. The pay roll is in the neighborhood of $6,000,000 annually.

Oil and natural gas have been discovered near San Antonio, which will result in great development in the industrial line on account of the cheap fuel that will be supplied from these fields.

Six railroad lines, upon which ninety-one trains enter and leave the city daily, connect San Antonio with the North, East, South and West. Forty-six of these trains are passenger, and the freight trains average forty-five daily.

An electric street car system, with 92 miles of track, operated throughout the entire city. There are 235 miles of sewers, 206 miles of sanitary and 29 miles of storm sewers.

The water supply of San Antonio is one of the finest in the United States, and experts say that it is sufficient to supply a city of 500,000. The water is drawn from 14 artesian wells, ranging in depth from 800 to 1600 feet, which supply about 50,000,000 gallons daily. Most of the hotels and manufacturing plants and many of the irrigated gardens in and near the city have their own wells, flowing an additional 50,000,000 gallons of water daily. This water is clear and cold, with but little minerals in solution.

The growth of San Antonio having sprung mainly from the service it has rendered as a distributing point, developing its wholesale business to about $150,000,000 value annually, it becomes necessary to consider the trade territory served by San Antonio.

This trade territory covers 63 counties and contains 68,015 square miles, or 43,529,600 acres. This is an area larger by 3850 square miles than the combined areas of Ohio, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Delaware. The population of this territory is nearly 1,000,000. This population has been supported and this wealth produced on less than 15 per cent development of the agricultural lands in the area indicated. It is estimated that in this territory there are between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000 acres of good agricultural land fit for cultivation, but not yet in cultivation.

The total value of the agricultural products and live stock produced in this area in 1918, according to official figures of the State Comptroller of Texas, was over $200,000,000. The cotton raised in the section in 1916 was estimated by the State experts at 700,000 bales, with a value of $150,000,000.

The climate of San Antonio is favorable to manufacturing for the following reasons: The mildness of the climate makes a saving in the fuel bill necessary to the heating of plants. The length of the days in the winter is greater than in Northern latitudes, hence there is a saving in the lighting costs. The climate being favorable to human life, gives greater efficiency and a generally happier and more contented condition of the workers. The favorable climate, together with the rich soil and relatively reasonable prices of land in and near the city, makes it possible for workmen to grow vegetables winter and summer at their homes, and thereby make those homes wholly or partly self-sustaining. Money thus saved is money made, and the workman at the same wage makes more money under those conditions.

The average temperature for the year 1918 was 60 degrees, the lowest in the average being 47 degrees in January and the highest 85 degrees in July. The relative humidity was only 60.6 degrees. Last year there were 290 days when the sun shone, this being slightly less than 1917, when 322 days were counted. The monthly average temperature and rainfall since 1871 follows:

	Deg. F	Inches
January	51.1	1.40
February	54.4	1.61
March	62.1	1.73
April	69.0	2.74
May	74.8	2.11
June	80.4	2.68
July	82.4	2.43
August	82.0	2.57
September	77.1	3.44
October	69.2	2.00
November	59.2	2.19
December	53.1	1.76
Year	67.1	27.64

The average relative humidity is only 67 per cent.

TAYLOR

Written Especially for the Standard Blue Book

BY THE RETAIL MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION, INC.

TAYLOR is a city of about 10,000 population, located in the heart of the famous "black land" belt of Texas, where exhaustion of land is unknown. There are farms around this city that have been in cultivation for more than 75 years and, without being fertilized in any manner, are today producing better crops than they did 75 years ago. This land is the most fertile within the confines of the United States of America and will produce any crop that is planted and properly worked, though cotton, corn, oats and sorghum are the staple crops.

The International and Great Northern Railway and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway junction in Taylor, giving short quick-haul to every direction of the compass and to every market reached by rail. Likewise giving short-haul to the seaports at Houston and Galveston.

Taylor is the main trading center between Dallas and Houston on the M., K. and T. and between San Antonio and Palestine on the I. and G. N., which gives it a trade territory that can not be surpassed.

Taylor is the best paved city in Texas, by which we mean that it has more square miles of paving per capita than any other city in the State, the total being about 21 lineal miles of paved streets.

Located in Taylor is the largest deep water well in the State. This well is about 3400 feet deep and flows about 3,000,000 gallons of pure water within every day of the year. This well is owned by the Taylor Water Company, of which Mr. A. J. Zilker of Austin, Texas, is the president.

About seven miles from Taylor is the famous oil field at Thrall. This field is about six years old now and, while not a big oil field, it has some very good pumping wells that produce a very fine grade of crude oil.

The City of Taylor has a commission form of government. The people elect five commissioners at large, who in turn employ a city manager, who is charged with the executive affairs of the city.

Taylor has good schools and good churches, clubs, lodges and other similar associations usual to a place of this size.

Farming is the chief industry, but there are several manufacturing concerns in the city, among which may be mentioned eight cotton gins, three oil mills, machine shops, a large mattress factory and two ice factories.

Mercantile lines and professional callings are well represented by able men, who have worked together for the building of this magnificent little city.

Taylor has four strong, progressive banks, that continue to show increasing deposits each year.

Those contemplating a change of residence for social, business or health reasons should investigate the City of Taylor.

TEMPLE

BY THE TEMPLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

THE town of Temple was founded in 1881. The population today is approximately 17,000—and "Every One a Live One." Located 128 miles south of Fort Worth and 212 miles north of Galveston and is served by two railroads, namely, the M. K. and T. and the Santa Fe. An interurban railroad between Temple and Belton, with its lines running through the main residence sections of both cities. The two great Southwestern trunk line railroads through the city with 32 passenger trains daily. The freight tonnage outbound from Temple in 1919 was far greater than that of any previous year, and likewise with the inbound. The railroad revenue here far exceeds the million-dollar mark.

Temple has seven and one-half miles of paved streets, 120 miles of concrete sidewalks and macadam roads leading in all directions from the city. Temple is also one of the principal points on the King of Trails and the Meridian Highways running from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. Every residence street is bordered with large, beautiful trees, making Temple a veritable park.

Temple has flour mills, planing mills, sash and door works, bottling works, a candy factory, the largest chewing gum factory in the South, two large ice and cold storage plants, cotton seed oil mills, compresses, cotton gins, foundry and machine shops, mattress factory, tin and sheet metal works, grist and feed mill, ice cream factories, creameries, bakeries and marble and granite works. Temple is also a center for the wholesale grocery houses, three of the largest in the State being represented here.

The excellent system of public schools in Temple, managed and conducted according to the latest improved methods, is sufficient evidence that Temple is no secondary city as far as educational advantages are concerned. A high school building costing over $100,000.00, and seven two-story brick ward buildings.

Temple churches, representing all the leading denominations, are noted for their size and architectural beauty.

There are three of the largest and most up-to-date surgical institutions in the South located here, namely: Temple Sanitarium, the King's Daughters Hospital and the Santa Fe Hospital. The Santa Fe Hospital is used by this entire division of the G. C. and S. Fe Railroad.

Temple owns her own waterworks plant, valued at over half a million dollars, with an unlimited water supply delivered to the people 98 per cent pure, through a perfect filtration plant; also owns her own sewerage system, valued at more than $150,000.00.

Temple is noted for her health conditions, pure water and good climate, having an elevation of 703 feet above the sea level and being the highest point of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railways.

Temple's growth has been steady and substantial, and is due to the enterprise and push of its business men and citizens.

Temple is surrounded by some of the best cotton, grain, general farming and stock lands in Central Texas. The climate of this section is unsurpassed. The spring and fall months are exceedingly delightful. Temple is considered one of the most healthful cities in the Middle West.

Organization and co-operation are the essential elements of success in the affairs of men and cities. The rapid growth and development of the City of Temple during the past few years is due directly to the fact that its citizens are united and co-operate in all matters pertaining to the public welfare. It is a progressive city that appeals to ambitious and progressive people.

Temple is an ideal city for factory locations, and we offer many inducements. Temple has numerous other advantages that make life worth living, and to the public we extend a hearty invitation to visit our city.

WACO

BY THE WACO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

NESTLING on the banks of the Brazos River, amidst fertile fields, the City of Waco, originally called "Huaco," links the peaceful and picturesque scenes of today with the history and traditions of the Huaco Indians who in ages past established their village and council house where the silvery waters of the Bosque join those of the Brazos on its journey to the Gulf of Mexico. With a population of over 50,000 hospitable citizens, who have expended money and time to make this little city a desirable place in which to live; with beautiful homes and miles of paved streets lined with thousands of beautiful shade trees; with a system of public parks unexcelled in any city of its size in the United States; with fine schools, colleges and churches, Waco is most aptly called "A City With a Soul."

There are ten banks in Waco, all doing a good business. Business conditions generally are most prosperous.

Waco is located in the very heart of the great cotton producing area of Texas, the greatest cotton State in the world, and many of the industries of the city are naturally akin to cotton and its products. During the cotton season, hundreds of thousands of bales of cotton are marketed in and through Waco; cotton gins dot the county; an immense cotton compress is located in the city, and our cotton oil mills manufacture the by-products of the cotton seed. The agricultural interests of this section are not confined to cotton. Practically all the crops common to the South-Central part of the United States are grown in Central Texas. Stock raising is an important industry. Near Waco are several of the largest fine stock farms in the State, principal among which are the famous Good Man Valley Farm and Wildayr Farm, both with registered Hereford cattle, Shropshire sheep, etc. Waco has a Chamber of Agriculture, devoted to the agricultural interests of this section, which has recently brought in from Nebraska over one hundred head of the finest hogs that could be procured, distributing them on the various farms with a view of raising the standard of hogs produced here. A licensed cotton classer, gain inspector, cattle inspector and several county agricultural and demonstration agents are kept constantly employed, looking after the interests of our agricultural sections.

Waco is the home of a number of manufacturing establishments. Candies, the famous "Circle A" ginger ale, pickles, rubber tires, overalls and many other commodities are manufactured here and shipped to all parts of the civilized world. Several wholesale houses are located here. We have the largest wholesale grocery house in the entire State of Texas, two large wholesale drug houses, wholesale dry goods houses and various other wholesale concerns. A million dollar cotton mill is now under construction and will be in operation within a very short time. A large cordage and twine mill will probably begin operation soon.

Probably no other city in Texas enjoys better transportation facilities than does Waco, being served by the Santa Fe., M., K. and T., Cotton Belt, I. and G. N., S. A. and A. P., Southern Pacific and interurban connections with Dallas, Fort Worth, Corsicana, Sherman and Denison. Another interurban line is now being extended south to Temple, Belton and southwestern points. We have direct service into the great oil fields of the western part of the State and can serve that territory by freight or express in the shortest possible time. Two companies take care of the express from Waco, the Texas Electric Company and American Railway Express Company.

Waco is the home of Baylor University, which has a successful record of 74 years. Our public school system is one of the best in the State. We have an excellent public library in addition to the library at Baylor University, which contains over 50,000 volumes and is open to the public.

WAXAHACHIE

BY THE WAXAHACHIE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

WAXAHACHIE, the home of Trinity University, is one of the best towns of its size in the State. It is the capital of Ellis County, the banner agricultural county of Texas and the biggest cotton growing county in the world. Population of Waxahachie is 10,000 and Ellis County 64,000. The extent of the commercial interests is indicated by the deposits of its banks, which have been known to aggregate more than $7,000,000.00. The city has a beautiful park, which is reached by the electric car line. There are about ten miles of paved streets now and a paving program of $1,000,000.00 is under way. The entire city has cement sidewalks.

The leading religious denominations have handsome edifices and large congregations. The public schools are among the very best in the State. A modern fireproof high school building has just been completed at a cost of $90,000.00. The entire city feels a just pride in its educational institutions. The Sims Library, built, equipped and perpetually maintained by the generosity of the late Nicholas P. Sims, is a power for good in the city. Waxahachie offers splendid inducements to persons having children to educate. With Trinity University for those of college age and the ward schools and the high school for those of public school age, all the educational needs of prospective citizens are met. The splendid electric street car system renders Trinity University, the ward schools, the high school and the churches accessible from all parts of the city.

Waxahachie is located 30 miles south of Dallas, 40 miles southeast of Fort Worth and 70 miles north of Waco. It is served by the Houston and Texas Central; Missouri, Kansas and Texas; Trinity and Brazos Valley and the Texas Electric Railways.

There are three large cotton oil mills; a successfully operated cotton mill; a compress; four cotton gins, one of which is the largest in the world; a nursery company which grows and ships millions of trees annually; a candy factory, serving a large territory in a wholesale way; a number of large modern garages and other industrial institutions, all of which make Waxahachie prominent in the commercial world. The Texas Oil Products Company is now building a refinery to cost $650,000.00.

A public sanitarium is maintained by an association of citizens and is loyally patronized by the citizens of the town and county. A campaign is now on to provide larger fireproof accommodations and sufficient funds will be raised to build, equip and endow a modern hospital in the near future.

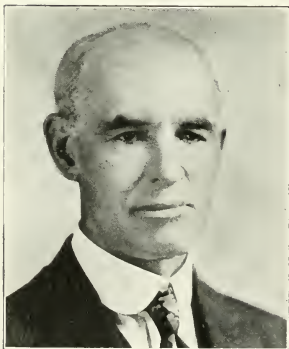

Waxahachie's modern hotel, the Rogers, is a source of pride to all citizens and under able management has taken its place among the best hotels in the State.

This is a partial view of Heldenfels Brothers shipyards, at Rockport, Texas. They have built four wooden hulls for the Emergency Fleet Corporation; each hull is of 350 dead weight tonnage 282 feet, 6 inches in length; 46 feet beam with a moulded depth of 26 feet. The yard was constructed to build wooden hull ships during the war emergency and will be operated as a permanent industry, doing everything in wooden construction and some steel work. This plant is giving employment to 500 men and is adding much to the prosperity of Rockport.

Jacamiah Seaman Daugherty

DECEASED, FORMERLY OF HOUSTON.

Jacamiah Seaman Daugherty was born in Sullivan County, Mo., August 25th, 1849, the oldest of a family of five children. His mother and he held fort at home during the four years his father gave to the lost cause as Captain in General Price's Army.

He attended the Public Schools of his community and entered the Kentucky University in 1869, from which Institution he later received a Diploma.

He came to Dallas County in the fall of 1872, and taught school until July, 1873.

On September 15th, 1873, he opened a land office in Dallas, Texas, and engaged in the land business.

Individually, and as a member of the firm of Daugherty, Connellee and Ammerman, he located several million acres of land.

They put down the first water well ever dug on the staked plains of Texas. In 1876 they caused the County Seat of Eastland County to be removed from Merriman to Eastland and laid out the present thriving oil town of that name.

J. S. Daugherty was the father of the Business League idea in the United States. Served as Chairman of the first League in Dallas, Texas, from 1882 to 1888, giving his time and paying his part of the expense of the Committee. This Committee laid the foundation upon which Dallas has grown. He organized, in 1882, the first Real Estate Association ever formed in Texas and was elected its Chairman. As Chairman of that Association he brought on the fight that caused the cattlemen of Texas to have to pay into the Public School Fund of the State $250,000.00 to $500,000.00 per annum, as rents for school lands they had previously grazed their cattle on for nothing.

In 1898 he organized the Texas Bureau of Immigration, composed of a representative from each Senatorial District. He was elected Chairman of the Bureau and brought on the fight that resulted in the formation of Texas Railroad Commission.

In 1893 the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress, by unanimous vote, asked him to prepare an address to the people of the United States on the Silver question, which he did, and they elected him orator of Silver Day, at the Chicago World's Fair. When Richard P. Bland made his argument in 1893, in behalf of the free coinage of silver, he asked and received unanimous consent of Congress to have Mr. Daugherty's address printed in the Congressional Record, as part of his argument on the question.

At the Trans-Mississippi Congress he offered a resolution in the Good Roads Committee to provide a fund to protect their depositors against loss and was the first public advocate of that idea.

Between the years 1890 and 1895 he represented Texas in the Good Roads Committee of the United States, printing and distributing large quantities of Good Roads literature and holding Good Roads meetings all over the State.

In 1909 he was Chairman of the Harris County Drainage Association and took an active part in the creation of the first Drainage District in Harris County.

In 1910 he drafted resolutions, presented and secured their adoption by the Texas Industrial Congress, memorializing the United States Congress to locate a Naval Station, Navy Yard, Dry Docks, Arsenal and Ordnance Factory in Texas, the sight to be selected by a Naval Board.

He took an initiative part in securing the construction of a deep water harbor at Galveston, Texas.

During his fifty years of residence in the State, there has been no question agitated, pertaining to its general welfare, that did not receive his intelligent co-operation.

On the 27th of September, 1919, Jacamiah Seaman Daugherty was instantly killed while crossing the public thoroughfare at Fulton, Kentucky, by an Illinois Central passenger train. His tragic death is sincerely mourned by all who knew of his genuine worth to the great State of his adoption.

He leaves a widow, Margaret Cartmell Daugherty and three living children, Bryan Daugherty of New York City, Mrs. John T. Judd and Mrs. F. Fenwick Kendall of Houston, Texas.

The Texas State Dental Society

Written Especially for the Standard Blue Book

BY C. E. STEPHENS, D. M. D., PRESIDENT.

THE Texas State Dental Society was organized in the city of Galveston in 1880, with six members. The fortieth anniversary will be celebrated soon, with a membership of more than six hundred. The object of the Association has always been to cultivate the science and art in dentistry, to elevate the professional character of the members and to promote among them the spirit of good-fellowship.

Growing out of the State Society there have been many Local Societies organized in the different cities in the State, which work in conjunction with the State Society. These Local Societies for the last few years have done wonderful work in an educational way, in working through the public schools and Mothers' Congress, educating the children along the line of propholaxis and mouth hygiene.

The Texas State Dental Society is now working in conjunction with the State Health Board, public nurses and Red Cross Nurses, in localities and rural districts where the public are lacking in education on the care of the mouth.

During the war, organizations of the members of the State Society were formed in every County and District where men were being enlisted in the service, both Army and Marine. Dental services were given to the men who enlisted, free of charge, their mouths being put into a healthy condition and their teeth restored so that they would be more efficient for mastication.

Over sixty of our men saw service in the army. Many of them served overseas with the American Expeditionary Forces. Our quota was always filled and a long waiting list of Dentists anxious to take their places when called.

After a member has been in good standing in the Society for twenty-five years, he is then elected to membership in "The Order of Good-fellows," which is a distinction much coveted by all of our members.

There is a great awakening in the profession in the line of propholaxis and oral hygienes, realizing more that clean teeth and a healthy mouth are essential to good health.

The State Society this year branches out in a new field along the scientific side. We are bringing six of the best men in the United States in their respective branches, men who are expert in their line or work, coming from Colleges and Universities, giving an entire week to Post-Graduate work, thereby giving our members the advantage of taking this work at home instead of having to go to other cities to obtain the same work. This year one hundred and thirteen of our men attended the annual convention of the National Dental Association, the largest delegation of any State in the Union, except the State in which the convention was held.

Our Society this last year, through its members and friends of the profession, succeeded in getting laws passed which will effectively protect the public from the incompetent men who have heretofore found a fertile field in this State for their poor services rendered.

We are hoping that the influence of our Society will at some time in the near future, succeed in establishing a Dental Department in our University. The following is a list of the Presidents of the Texas State Dental Society:

TEXAS' PART IN THE WORLD WAR

BY CHARLES W. SCRUGGS

State Adjutant, the American Legion

A MERE glimpse into the inside history of the Empire State of the Union will show a citizenship nurtured in the strongest bonds of patriotism and loyalty. Successively acknowledging the supremacy of six flags and wresting her independence from each of the first five, then to go by her own free will under the Stars and Stripes, is a heritage approached by no other state and forms a noble history of which Texas is justly proud.

It was this citizenship, nurtured in the cradle of Texas Liberty, Loyalty and Patriotism, that made an immediate response to the greatest call of all—the world conflict of 1917-1918. Standing fifth in point of population, she also stood fifth in the total number of men sent into the service; thus living up to her exact record. In actual figures we furnished 175,344 men for the Army, 22,522 for the Navy and Marine Corps, and 362 in the United States Coast Guards, a total of 198,228, or 4.16 per cent of the whole.*

*The figures on the air service are not yet available, but our state sent many men into this enticing but dangerous branch, and Texas was awarded five aviation training camps—containing about three-fourths of all the air service of the Nation.

Texas' response to the call for volunteers was immediate and spontaneous, and after the Selective Service Act went into effect 75 out of every 100 men examined were accepted for service. A record unsurpassed and equalled only by eleven other states. Not counting the thousands of Texas men in other organizations and on special service, Texas wholly furnished two main divisions, trained, equipped and sent overseas.

The 36th Division, composed of Texas National Guardsmen, was drafted into Federal service August 5th, 1917, after having been recruited to war strength by its own efforts. This division was trained at Camp Bowie, Tex., under the command of Major General E. St. John Greble. General Greble, however, was relieved of the command on the eve of the departure for France, being succeeded by Major General Smith. The bulk of this division reached France in July, 1918, and reached the front about October 1st, receiving its first shell fire at St. Mihiel, October 6-7. It remained a combat division to the end of the war. They captured 549 prisoners. The total casualties of this division amounted to 2,528. The artillery of this division was returned to the United States in March, 1919, the remainder of the division following in May.

The 90th Division was organized at Camp Travis during the months of September and October, 1917, from National Army troops under the command of Major General Henry T. Allen. This division reached France in June, 1918, and went into action during September of the same year, remaining a combat division for the remainder of the war. This division captured 1,875 prisoners. Total casualties amounted to 7,277. The 90th Division returned to the United States in June, 1919.

Outside of these two divisions, thousands of Texans were in other organizations and did their duty as only real men can know or understand. Speaking of Texas troops, the commanding general of the American Expeditionary Forces referred to them as men "who did what was to be expected when we remember the history of their state, nurtured, as they are, in the cradle of loyalty and patriotism. I consider that the work of the 90th Division was not surpassed and the 36th was a very good second to it." Approximately 3,000 loyal Texans paid the supreme sacrifice in France in order that freedom and justice might not die.

And after two years the war was over and the boys came home. They found that the reconstruction area had problems far more reaching than the problems of warfare. There are battles of peace as of war. Instinctively the men who were organized into the greatest fighting organization of our National history turned into an organization of their own, wherein they might work together toward the forwarding of the same principles of decent government for which they went to war in 1917.

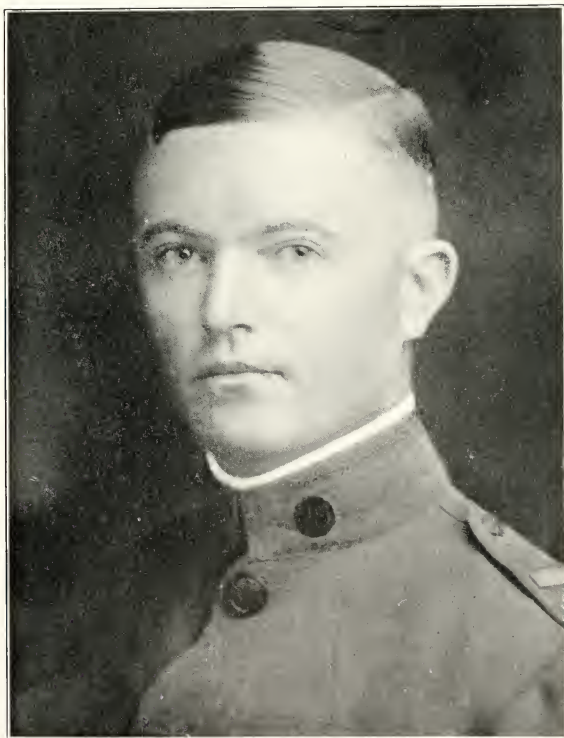

For these reasons, therefore, the American Legion had its birth. Its work in the promoting of 100 per cent Americanism and kindred subjects speaks for itself.

The future of the American Legion will be what its membership shall make it, and remembering of what material this membership is composed, we may say that the future is very bright. On the experience of the past shall we build our plans for a larger and better America always.

To Our Heroes and Heroines

Here's to the state of a single star
That sends its gleaming message afar,
To tell of strength and a courage rare,
Of skies that are blue and a land that is fair
Of heroes who lived for the common weal,
Of heroes who died that we might feel
Ourselves secure in our broad domain
Won by a faith that was not in vain.
Then here's to our state of the many flags
Whose hope for the future never lags,
Whose allegiance grows ever more loyal and true
To her flag of the present—our red, white and blue.

This page was patriotically given by a friend, Sidney A. Long, in memory of Corporal Thos. W. Wood—Gone West.

IT was a sad message indeed that brought the the news to loved ones and friends that Tom Wood had made the "supreme sacrifice" on November 5th, just six days before the armistice was signed.

The noble, self-sacrificing motherhood of America is now realizing, as never before, the heart sorrow and the tragedy of war, as the names of the "dead on the field of honor," are reported daily. Who can fathom the depths of the heartaches and the soul throbs that are borne upward on the wings of prayer, imploring Divine strength and comfort in this dark hour of their sore trial? But this, we are told, is war, and now the dreaded day of tribulation for many loved ones is at hand.

Among the more than fifty thousand soldier boys who, in the strength of their young manhood, left their beautiful homeland for the bloody battlefields, nevermore in mortal flesh to return, was our young friend, Thomas W. Wood, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wood, of 809 Pierce avenue, Houston.

Tom was just twenty-five years of age, a graduate of the Houston High School, and was identified with this church and Sunday School, having joined the old Shearn Church a number of years ago, when it was located on Texas Avenue.

He was a volunteer in the service, and in one of his letters home, he stated he was glad to learn that all of his relatives in this war were volunteers also.

In France he was with the 357th Ambulance Company, 90th Division, which work, obviously, was a very dangerous, although a most important branch of the active service. In writing of the hazardous nature of his duties, he remarked concerning the part that fear plays while under fire on the battlefield: "We find ourselves in some mean places sometimes, and I have learned that only a fool doesn't know fear; however, if a man has a high and right regard for duty, fear doesn't bother but just enough to make him careful."

In another letter we get a further insight into his nature, when he says "I find that the one thing that gives me most worry and concern is, driving under shrapnel, sometimes through gas, pitch dark, and over muddy, shell-torn roads, with patients in the ambulance. * * * Running into mustard gas with four to eight helpless patients in the ambulance, you have to put on your mask, put masks on all the patients, and then drive out of this hell." Safe at home by the side of our comfortable firesides, we can scarcely imagine the heroic grit and character necessary to carry out an operation of this nature.

To those who knew him, it hardly seems possible that a young man of Tom's build, gentle and sympathetic disposition should have been assigned to the particular line of duty in which he was engaged. But doubtless his official superior knew him best, and so, where the bullets from the machine guns were raking the field, shells on the land and in the air were bursting, and deadly, hell-born gases were hurled in waves and clouds across the shell-torn field, with that high conception of duty overcoming fear, referred to by him, there is where we find they placed him, only to die the death of the young hero that he was.

He realized that he was an American, and could not honorably do otherwise. The incomparable heroes of the Alamo could have done no more. What a beautiful, high and noble memory, therefore, sealed with the crimson flow of his very life's blood, he has bequeathed to a loving father and mother, brother and sisters!

Thompson, Lieut. Robert Eckford, Temple. Lieut. Thompson was born in Bell County, near Temple, Oct. 1, 1893. He was a member of the Elks, W. O. W. and the Methodist Church. His parents reside at Temple. His father, Mr. C. E. Thompson, is a prominent stockman and farmer. His mother was formerly Miss Alvia Alice Cox, daughter of Col. R. L. Cox, deceased. Lieut. Thompson met his death on the battlefield, Sept. 13, 1918, in the famous St. Mihiel drive in France. Just before his death, in writing to his devoted mother, he used this expression: "Your prayers are sweet and beautiful; they help me do my duty well and aid me in doing the things I should do." He also lauded his mother for accepting the war and his portion, in which he played such a conspicuous part, as a necessity, and for her patriotic and unselfish attitude shown in behalf of her country. He also made expressions as to his father and brother, showing his most tender and loving devotion to them. His name was recently honored by the American Legion naming the Bell County Post in memory of Lieut. Thompson. This unit is composed of World War veterans, Spanish-American, Confederate and other veterans who have taken part in conflicts for their country's honor. As a soldier, he died as he had lived; without fear, doing his duty faithfully and heroically. The following resolutions, adopted unanimously by the House of Representatives of Texas, are self-explanatory, namely:

"In memory of Lieut. R. E. Thompson: Whereas, Lieut. R. E. Thompson, an honored member of the bar, a native-born son of Texas, a graduate of the Texas State University, an efficient prosecuting attorney, resigned his office, abandoned his chosen profession and enlisted in his country's cause; and

"Whereas, Lieut. R. E. Thompson, famed for his courage, noted for his skill in handling a machine gun, fell on September 13th behind the German line in the famous St. Mihiel drive; and

"Whereas, While his plane was burning he climbed out on the fuselage and spent the last moments fighting; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the House of Representatives unanimously adopt this resolution in memory of R. E. Thompson for his valiant service, his courage, fidelity and the unselfish life he gave for his country, and that we commemorate the memory of Lieut. R. E. Thompson and share with his noble parents, who gave him to his country, the loss of a noble, brave and courageous son."

A Memorial to American Heroes

by

ENRICO CERRACCHIO
SCULPTOR, HOUSTON

This artistic masterpiece is the materialization of a dream that four years of war and many years of applied talent brought to life in Houston.

In this original memorial conception by Mr. Cerracchio there is poetry, and music, the grace and unconfined joy, the dignity of just victory, happiness, strength, purpose, balance, poise — one glorious combine — a piece of frozen music.

The base is of Texas granite, with four walks of red granite leading away from it so as to form a huge Red Cross, the statute rising from its center. On the pedestals are the figures of Pershing, Haig, Foch and Diaz, sentinels of humanity; surmounting the central pedestal four figures of womanhood, with outstretched arms supporting a globe—the redeemed world—and topping the globe a lone, winged figure—the angel of eternal peace, one knee bended and in her hands the pieces of a broken sword.

Friezes depict the four greatest battles of the world war, and above, bronze tablets bear the names of Texas heroes who gave their lives in the World War for liberty and humanity.

OSTEOPATHY

BY THE TEXAS OSTEOPATHIC ASSOCIATION

Written Especially for the Standard Blue Book

DR. ANDREW TAYLOR STILL, the founder of Osteopathy, conceived the idea that there must be some successful way of treating diseased conditions without drugs, and for seven or eight years he applied himself as a student of the human machine and as a student of the human body.

A thorough study of the body developed the important fact that the human body is a machine, and that within this machine, all parts being normal, it can carry on its activities without outside assistance with the exception of the raw material required.

Early in the '90s he started to practice and was scoffed at by the old-line practitioners, but his success was so marvelous and so many cures were effected where people had become hopeless, that it was only a short time before he had firmly established Osteopathy and had shown the good results that it could produce. The growth of Osteopathy in the United States has been a marvel.

We now have practicing in the United States something like 10,000 practitioners. These men and women are required to be equally as well educated—if not more thoroughly—than the old-line practitioner. Their education consists of a course of study requiring four years and nine months each, in all of the fundamental branches of the Healing Art. We are recognized by the law of every State and Territory in the United States, and our requirements are equal to those of the old school. The Science has built such a solid foundation and is so strong that there is no word of condemnation against it now by the thinking man or woman of today.

This scientific treatment of disease has achieved such wonderful development in thirty years' time as no other branch of any cult has ever gained. The development has been along scientific lines. Today there is existing in the United States ten of as fine colleges as there are in any system of teaching. Hospitals are being built and maintained by the Osteopaths. A General Research Institute is maintained by general subscriptions from the Osteopaths of the United States to carry on scientific work and scientific preparation to more thoroughly develop Osteopathy.

During the epidemic of flue that covered the world in 1918 and 1919 the Osteopathic per centage of deaths from flu was only .47 of 1 per cent, which shows that Osteopathy is capable of taking care of all acute as well as chronic conditions.

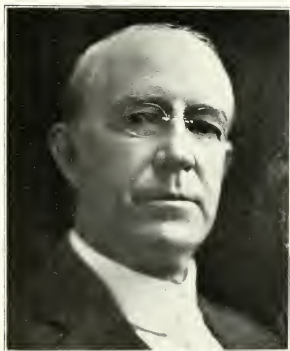

In the development of Osteopathy we have proven that diseased conditions are caused more often by some maladjustment of boning, muscular or ligamentous or nerve conditions, thereby reducing the vitality and resisting power of the tissues—a normal flow of blood to all parts meaning health. Under these conditions Osteopathy has grown to be a wonderful power in the United States and foreign countries.

MUSICAL TEXAS

BY CLYDE WHITLOCK.

President, Texas Music Teachers' Association

THE idea recently prevailed in some portions of the country that Texas is an untamed region where all the male population wears the regulation cowboy outfit (which is regulation only in the movies) and where the Indians still indulge in occasional outbreaks and where bears may be seen wandering down Main Street. An inevitable corollary of this impression was that Texas was necessarily quite undeveloped musically. However, we may reasonably lay claim to being in a favorably advanced state musically and in support of our claims we enumerate a few of our musical resources.

There are within the state a large number of schools and colleges which maintain large music departments administered by teachers of the broadest experience and musicianship, many of whom are of national repute. The University of Texas has a Department of Music whose work is counted toward the academic degree in the university. The College of Industrial Arts, at Denton, a state school, has one of the largest fine arts departments in the country.

The State Department of Education is showing an active interest in music in the public schools of the state. Only recently a committee was appointed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Miss Annie Webb Blanton, to revise all the present public school music courses and to provide a number of new ones for use in the high schools. The State Committee on Affiliation has officially ruled that music is a suitable subject for high school credit on the same basis as any other subject. Texas has a State Supervisor of Music.

One of the sure signs of the progressiveness of the music teaching profession of a state, and indirectly of the entire musical activity of the state, is the presence of a State Music Teachers' Association. The Texas Music Teachers' Association, ranking perhaps fifth in the country in membership, has accomplished much in unifying the interests of the profession and in establishing the educational value of music study. It was through the efforts of the association that the State Department of Education has been interested in taking up seriously the status of music in the schools. The association has also obtained from the Association of Texas Colleges a statement of policy looking toward the recognition of high school music credits for college entrance.

The Texas Federation of Music Clubs, affiliated with the National Federation of Music Clubs, is an influential organization representing some seventy of the most active music clubs of the state. Many of the leading teachers of the state have given scholarships to the federation, which are awarded to deserving students. The Scholarship Committee has each year been able to secure scholarships from well-known teachers and schools in the national musical centers, which are awarded in open competition.

One of the unmistakable evidences of an aroused public interest in music is the successful operation of a symphony orchestra. There are at least four orchestras of symphonic proportions in the state—the San Antonio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Julien Paul Blitz; the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, Walter J. Fried, conductor; the University Symphony Orchestra, of Austin, Prof. Frank L. Reed, conductor; and the Waco Symphony Orchestra, Severin Frank, conductor.

The largest cities of the state have concert seasons that would have done credit to cities thrice their size a few years ago. In addition to individual artists some of the most important symphonic and operatic organizations have annual appearances in Texas. The Chicago Opera Association has for some years appeared in Fort Worth and Houston in the course of its pre-season tour of only nine cities, Fort Worth being probably the only city which has been included in every tour. It may be mentioned that Fort Worth and Houston heard Gali-Curci in opera before New York had that opportunity.

One of the musical resources of the state is the only periodical published in the Southwest devoted exclusively to the interests of music. This is "The Musicales," published monthly in Dallas. This journal is the official organ of the Texas Music Teachers' Association, the Texas Federation of Music Clubs, the Texas Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, and the Texas Music Merchants' Association.

During the fall of 1919 Dallas celebrated "Music Day," which proved to be one of the most potent agencies for publicity for music that has been devised. On that day all the musical interests of the city united for the exploitation of its musical resources by means of concerts, receptions, and demonstrations. New York later had a Music Week, and whether or not it was suggested by the Texas event, at least the chronological sequence gives us the right to assert that such was its inception.

These conditions indicate progressive developments and assure the accomplishment of substantial results.

Brackenridge, George W., San Antonio. Home address, Washington Heights. Native of Indiana. Organized the San Antonio National Bank, July 5th, 1866, and served continuously as its president for more than forty-eight years, when he retired from active service. His gifts have been numerous, especially to education and much of his time has been devoted to opening up wider opportunities for broader education in the State University and public schools. One of the last tributes in appreciation for his services to education was shown when San Antonio's newest and finest high school was made his namesake. For more than twenty-five years he served continuously as a member of the Board of Regents of the University of Texas. During this time he was the only Republican member of the Board of Regents and all his appointments to this body were conferred by Democratic Governors. San Antonio will remember Mr. Brackenridge for two things in particular: one being the gift to the city of what has been called the South's most beautiful playground, "Brackenridge Park." But more important than this is San Antonio's water supply, pronounced by physicians as being unexcelled any place in the United States. This was the result of Mr. Brackenridge's efforts while at the head of the San Antonio Waterworks to give San Antonio the very best that nature could provide. He not only gave the city its first flowing wells while he was president of the San Antonio Waterworks but added numerous others even after he severed his connection with this company. In this way he has materially assisted farm and ranch by keeping creeks flowing while others were dry. He is a 32d degree Mason. Favorite recreations are hunting, yachting, traveling and scientific research. Ancestry, Scotch-Irish.

F. W. Schuerenberg (deceased), member State Council of Defense, Washington County, Texas.

Mr. F. W. Schuerenberg was born in Washington County, January 17, 1862, in the little town of Berlin, where his father Capt. Frederick William Schuerenberg had settled at the close of the war between the states some years after he had fled from Germany in 1848 to escape the dominion of the Prussian Autocrats. In 1866 he married Miss Bertha Reichardt, daughter of E. Reichardt, a pioneer of Washington County, Texas. His widow survives him together with two daughters, Mesdames J. J. Marek and C. A. DeWare. At the death of his father he and his brother R. A. Schuerenberg took active charge of the business which rapidly grew until it became one of the most important business concerns in Texas. The dominating characteristic of Mr. Schuerenberg's personality was his intense and enthusiastic patriotism. He devoted himself with zeal and energy to patriotic activities and war work of all kinds, contributing liberally to every call for funds. He died March 1, 1919.

Mrs. T. A. Adams, daughter of R. A. Schuerenberg. Mr. R. A. Schuerenberg, deceased. Mrs. R. A. Schuerenberg, Brenham, Texas. Mr. R. A. Schuerenberg, deceased, was born in Berlin, Washington County, Texas, near Brenham, August 21st, 1833, and spent his early boyhood days in Brenham, receiving his education in the public schools of that city. He died on the 20th day of June, 1919. He was a member of the Elks, K. of P., Gun & Rod Club and Chamber of Commerce. He married Miss Louise Hoffman of Brenham, January 20th, 1886. His widow and daughter, Mrs. T. A. Adams survive him.

San Antonio Express San Antonio Evening News Semi-Weekly Farm Express

These three newspapers, all the product of the Express Publishing Company of San Antonio, cover a field for the national advertiser that has no counterpart in market productiveness in the United States.

It is a territory larger than several average states; it extends from Central Texas far into the Republic of Mexico, north and south, and having a width of more than 600 miles.

In this vast region is a thriving, prosperous, go-ahead people who look to the columns of these newspapers for guidance in their purchases.

Now is the opportune time for the national advertiser to reap a golden harvest by meeting the wants of these people upon whom the sun of unprecedented prosperity is shining.

Remember, San Antonio is the largest city in Texas; the military capital of the Southwest; the metropolis of a great trade territory. Your advertising list will not be complete unless you include the

WEST TEXAS MILITARY ACADEMY

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS

Established in 1892

PREPAREDNESS IS THE NATION'S GREATEST SAFEGUARD

Best equipped military school in the Southwest. Fireproof barracks costing $100,000, steam-heated and electric-lighted throughout, with shower baths, swimming pool — a ten-acre athletic field — all equipment furnished and approved by the United States Government.

Climatic and location conditions are ideal—artesian water, absolutely pure—eight buildings for school purposes.

Intermediate and Academic Courses—Graduates enter college, army or business life. Beginning with the fifth grade, the course carries through the first year of the university course, credits being accepted at all first rank schools.

Military training, together with a well-balanced educational course, such as West Texas Military Academy offers, will prepare your son for whatever exigencies of life lie ahead of him, in business, in his profession, in civic and military duty if such be required.

Thrift

Your future is being determined now—today, tomorrow, every day!

You are creating it yourself and it will be true to the pattern you specify—either the success or the failure model.

Systematic saving will sooner or later enable you to be an investor and by reinvesting your earnings you can acquire wealth.

You will have little chance of ever getting rich unless you save systematically.

We pay 4.38 per cent Interest on Saving Accounts.

THE SERVICE HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION OF TEXAS

The Service Hospital Association is in successful operation in this City; and while it may appear to be something new in Health and Accident Insurance, many similar Organizations have been founded in other States in the Union, and without exception, are popular and prosperous.

Members pay an annual fee of $12.00 in advance or an entrance fee of $3.00 and $1.00 per month. Thus a member saves $3.00 by paying in advance, for the year. Wives of members are admitted on payment of seventy-five cents per month.

The Association, for this modest sum, provides for a member, in case of illness or accident, free medical and surgical attention, including medicines, surgical dressings, nurses, hospital, with private room and board while in the hospital, ambulance service and electrical treatments, in fact—covering all expense incurred during an illness or accident.

We are equipped with a complete X-ray plant.

Men, women and children, between the ages of ten and fifty-five years, are eligible to membership.

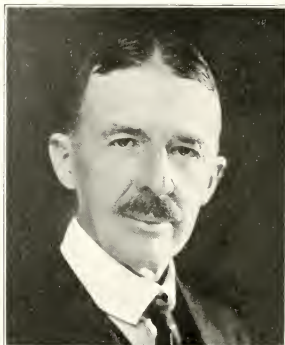

Special rates to clubs, factories and stores.

The Secret of Higher Salaries

The "secret" of higher salaries is no secret at all. You can earn almost any salary you wish—provided you do not stop with wishing.

Here is the "secret." If you would EARN more you must be WORTH more. If you would GET more you must GIVE more. Your salary—your success—will be exactly in proportion to your worth—your efficiency. If you want to increase your income, you must increase your efficiency. There is no other way.

Increasing the efficiency of young people—preparing them for positions in business and civil service as stenographers, secretaries, bookkeepers, accountants, office workers; positions paying from $60 to $125 a month to start; positions which have served as the starting points for thousands and thousands of our most successful business men and women—this is our life work.

We can give you the same start we have given thousands of others. And you can attain the same heights if you will make the same start. Will you make that start NOW? Day and Night School the year 'round. Positions guaranteed. Call, write or phone for large illustrated Catalogue.

MADAME D'ANTON

"The Dance of Cleopatra"

Madame D'Anton came to San Antonio from the Vaudeville stage, where she had her own classical dancing act.

During the world war she owned and conducted the attractive "Jardin De Danse" (Garden of Dance) located on Houston Street. Hundreds of Army men were taught the art of ball room dancing by Madame D'Anton and her corps of competent teachers.

Since the world war ended, Madame D'Anton has closed the "Garden of Dance" and is specializing on stage training. Many of her students are at present associated with the Movies, in leading roles, or in theatrical organizations of note.

Feature Dances—Le Mouche De Feu, Danse Du Point, Scarf Dance, (Pas De Ballet, Chaminade) The Sculptor's Dream, and others.

Students are coached for the Movies and trained for the Stage.

THE DAISY DETACHABLE FISH TAIL BIT

Five Patents Pending

We have a tremendous pressure of water right on the tip of the DAISY FISH TAIL BIT that keeps it tempered and pulverizes the dirt before it has a chance to stick to the tip. There is not a chance for the gumbo or any other formation to stick to the bit, which cause all the trouble of drilling a well.

Hydraulic Well Cleaner and Packer Which Has Almost Human Possibilities.

A screen or perforated pipe which is used in practically every oil field and which is to protect and hold back the sand from coming in and choking the well. As this oil comes along it always brings more sand with it, until finally the well is choked. With this marvelous and almost human cleaner, we go down on the inside of the well with steel brushes and scrape the walls of the screen or perforated pipe on the inside thoroughly and all paraffin or other substance that has stopped the well on the inside will naturally fall down to the bottom, as it is impossible for it to go elsewhere.

At the bottom of the cleaner there is a valve that the minute it hits anything it immediately releases the tremendous pressure of water and cleans out everything from the inside. To clean strainer or perforated pipe on the outside, we have two expanding collars, 24 inches apart, which expand and shut off the pressure of water or oil above and below the perforated pipe, making it the only opening in the whole string of pipe that water or oil can come through, and open every pore of the strainer or perforated pipe and drive away all sand or any other substance that has stopped the well. This creates a big cavity and opens every pore of the strata, hence, greatly increasing the flow of oil.

When this part is cleaned we then release the expanding collars and drop them down, about 24 inches at a time, until strainer is cleaned from top to bottom.

The common Fish Tail Bit in use today is from three-fourths to one inch thick and from 10 to 14 inches long. The tips get dull and wear off in a very short time and have to be sharpened and often the steel is crystalized, hence it breaks off like glass when they are put into a hole, therefore they cause a lot of trouble and many wells are ruined by the use of the bit., as there are very few men who know how to temper the steel of a bit. The most expensive part of the bit, which is the shank, is thrown away.

The Fish Tail Bit is the most important part used in drilling a well. The whole rig and and the men depend on the ordinary Fish Tail Bit, which is really a failure, as it gets dull in a very short time and has to be pulled out and sharpened and put back into the hole, which is the most expensive part of drilling. A lot of time is so wasted.

The ordinary Fish Tail Bit will crystalize your pipe and practically ruin it so it is impossible to use for more than five or ten wells, but with the DAISY FISH TAIL BIT you can drill two or three times as many wells with the same pipe, which is a tremendous big saving.

THE DAISY FISH TAIL BIT will paralyze the cost of drilling, as the tips are made of tool steel, the finest steel known, and as they wear off they are kept sharpened all the time. The tips of the DAISY FISH TAIL BIT are two and one-half inches thick, while the ordinary Fish Tail Bit is about one-half inch thick. With the DAISY FISH TAIL BIT you will not have to pull out of the hole but one time to your twenty if using the old Fish Tail Bit.

THERE IS NO GOLD STAR on The Chronicle's service flag of 55 stars, but let this pro-American journal join the mothers and fathers of Texas in inscribing on the shaft of immortality this thought to the memory of their sons:

There is no mystery about what we call Death. Physical death is only the laying down of one life to take up a new life. To die bravely, in battle for one's country, is to begin nobly the life eternal.
